Armed Woman Taken by Police in Probate Court

THREAT TO KILL JUDGE GEORGE

GIRLS IN STRIKE BATTLE

A fist fight between a girl garment striker and a girl strikebreaker attracted the attention of a crowd estimated at 1,500 people at the corner of Essex and Washington streets, in the heart of the shopping district, at noon today. The striker, Miss Rose Grosberg, No. 25 Wall street, was arrested, but the strikebreaker escaped in the crowd after the melee.

A crowd of excited people followed the policeman with the girl down Washington street to the Lagrange street police station. The crowd surged about the entrance of the station and it became necessary to call out a reserve force of sixteen officers to hold the crowd in check while the girl and policeman made their way up the steps.

The trouble started, according to witnesses, when the Grosberg girl approached the girl strikebreaker as the latter came out of a shop where she had been at work. Miss Grosberg, it is said, approached the other girl and urged her to quit the shop where she was strikebreaking. The girl strikebreaker refused and a words battle began.

Finally militant methods were used. Some of the eye-witnesses claim that the strikebreaker pulled a tailor's knife from the bosom of her dress and that Miss Grosberg grabbed at her opponent's hair at the same time. At any rate, the two girls were in a lively mixup, surrounded by a crowd of yelling men, women and children that filled Essex street from sidewalk to sidewalk, and lined far out into the Washington street thoroughfare.

Placed Under Arrest.

While the fistic battle was at its height police officers rushed into the crowd and one of the patrolman placed Miss Grosberg under arrest. The other girl darted into the struggling mass that had formed a small ring about the spot where the two girls were fighting. Her name was not secured by the police.

There were about thirty police officers in the district and they had their hands full. Lagrange street was literally chocked with people when the officer and the girl he had arrested forced their way towards Station No. 4. They had made their way a short distance up the street when the reserves arrived and cleared the way. All the policemen were equipped with their night sticks, but the sticks were not used.

The battle for possession made a stir in the police station, occurring as it did in the middle of the shopping district and at the noon hour, when thousands of people were on the streets, created no end of excitement.

Extra Police on Duty.

Extra police were put on in the central part of the city today.

This added force was brought in from residential sections like Dorchester, Jamaica Plain and so on, to relieve the overworked officers of the city station, like Lagrange street, Joy street and Court square.

The presence of twenty-one strikers in

M'DONOUGH FIRE HERO EVEN BEFORE HE GETS UNIFORM

Reserve Officer McDonough of Station 3, who hasn't received his uniform as yet, was the hero of a fire he discovered in the brick tenement at No. 54 Myrtle street, West End, early today.

Like a full-fledged policeman, he sounded the alarm from box 34 and then, with Patrolmen Davis and Mangini, went up through the smoke-filled halls and aroused the occupants.

As a result of McDonough's prompt work, the firemen reached the scene before the fire obtained much headway and it was extinguished with a damage of $150.

HELD IN NEWTON ON THEFT CHARGE

Two well-dressed young men, who gave their names as Arthur Lawrence, twenty-five, and Harold Davenport, twenty-two, of New York, were held in $5,000 by Judge Kennedy in the Newton Police Court today on the charge of stealing two rolls of cloth from the tailor shop of Jacob Kaufman at Nonantum square, Newton, yesterday afternoon.

MEREDITH MAN DIES WHILE VISITING BANK

Word was received in Everett today by friends of Miss Grace Bickford of No. 10 Orchard street, that her father, Moses Bickford, 60 years old, dropped dead today at 9 o'clock, while depositing money in a bank at Meredith where he had his home. His wife is seriously ill and the news has been kept from her, heart disease is supposed to have caused death.

DEMAND MADE FOR EXPULSION OF M'DEVITT

Representative Matthew J. Carbary of Milford, a Democrat, serving his second term in the House and an influential member of that body, declared today flatly that Senator John J. McDevitt of Quincy should be expelled from the Senate. Carbary declared:

"I believe that Senator McDevitt's seat should be vacated. I have sympathy for a man who makes a mistake and then apologizes. But there is no room for sympathy in the case of Senator McDevitt.

"He has outrageously maligned an innocent man. His infamous and false charges against Representative John L. Buckley, who, to the best of my knowledge and to the knowledge of others of his colleagues, who know him well, is a man of unquestioned integrity, have nevertheless had the effect of casting a slur upon his name and reputation.

"I believe that the Senate would not be acting too severely if it vacated Senator McDevitt's seat."

Plans were in shaping at the State House today to punish McDevitt for maligning the Legislature with his "bribery" charges.

The trend of opinion was that McDevitt should be roundly censured by the Senate.

Expulsion is deemed somewhat too drastic a penalty for the Quincy talker. It is believed on Beacon Hill that McDevitt has learned his lesson.

The McDevitt case is now in the hands of the Senate Rules Committee, to which the report of the John Rules Committee, sounding McDevitt's charges as "untrue," "inconsistent" and so on, was referred in the Senate yesterday.

Evelyn, Fondling Baby Boy, Says She Still Fears Thaw

NEW YORK, March 5.—Lavishing her affections on a baby—a two-year-old boy—and apparently devotedly attached to the vigorous and attractive youngster, who is toddling happily about her apartments, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw again declared her fear of her husband, Harry K. Thaw, and her belief that should he ever be liberated he would probably carry out the threat he has often made to "kill me next."

Mrs. Thaw, wife of the slayer of Stanford White, will probably be called as a witness for the State in its fight to keep Thaw from getting out of Matteawan.

"I have absolutely no feeling against Harry," said Mrs. Thaw. "If he is sure he should be released, and if he can prove his sanity he should be given an opportunity to do so. I have never agreed with the alienists that Harry was what they call a true paranoiac. Paranoia is a progressive disease, and I am certain that Harry has improved since he was sent to Matteawan. That is due, I guess, to the fact that he has had no chance to dissipate. But even if he is not a paranoiac, I believe he is constitutionally inferior, and I fear that if he is released he may fall back into his old habits and probably carry out the threat he has made since he was sent away to kill me next."

CABINET HAS FIRST MEETING

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Starting his first day in office with a rush, President Wilson today named his Cabinet, sent their nominations to the Senate, called a Cabinet meeting that lasted an hour, and announced a "closed door" policy at the White House so far as hungry office-seekers were concerned.

In a statement he warned the horde of office-seekers that he would devote all his time to the business of the government, and that he would "decline to see applicants for office in person, except when he himself invited the interview."

This was his first official announcement as President. His second was to the effect that he would reappoint Edgar Clark for another term as member of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Cabinet.

The Cabinet named today is as follows:

William Jennings Bryan, State.
William Gibbs McAdoo, Treasury.
Lindley Murray Garrison, War.
James Clark McReynolds, Attorney-General.
Albert Sidney Burleson, Postmaster-General.
Josephus Daniels, Navy.
Franklin Knight Lane, Interior.
David Franklin Houston, Agriculture.
William C. Redfield, Commerce.
William Bauchop Wilson, Labor.

Reverses His Policy.

The President's announcement regarding his attitude toward office-seekers was made doubly interesting because it was directly opposed to his former expressed opinion about the necessity of an "open door" policy at the White House.

As soon as he arose today, President Wilson issued a hurry call for an immediate meeting of his Cabinet, and shortly thereafter sent their names to the Senate. The Cabinet's personnel is as forecasted yesterday.

The advance guard of a throng of office-seekers that thronged the executive offices before President Wilson appeared there shortly after 9 o'clock.

President Wilson's statement, issued after he saw the crowd, was to the effect that he would see no office seekers in person except where he himself requested the interview.

President's Statement.

The President's statement read:

The President regrets that he is obliged to announce that he deems it his duty to decline to see applicants for office in person, except when he himself invites the interview.

It is his purpose and desire to devote his attention very earnestly and very constantly to the business of the government and the large questions of policy affecting the whole nation, and he knows from his experience as Governor of New Jersey (where it fell to him to make innumerable appointments) that the greater part, both of his time and his energy, will be spent in personal interviews with candidates unless he sets an invariable rule in this matter.

It is his intention to deal with appointments through the heads of the several executive departments.

Charles R. Crane of Chicago, who, it was expected, would receive a place in the Cabinet, called on the President at 9:45. He said his visit was a personal one, and that, having failed to reach the capital in time to hear the inaugural address yesterday, he wished to have a few words with the President before returning to Chicago tonight. Mr. Crane refused to

Suffrage Bill Is Turned Down by Committee

Once more woman suffrage experiences a setback in Massachusetts. The Legislative Committee on Constitutional Amendments today reported to the House against the resolve to let women vote.

This resolve, introduced by Alice Stone Blackwell and other suffrage leaders, provides for amending the State Constitution by striking the word "male" from the voting qualification.

The vote of the committee was six against the resolve, three for it and two absent.

For the resolve—Senator Ward of Buckland (R.), Representative Parsons of Worcester (R.), and Louis S. Sullivan of Dorchester (D.).

Against the resolve—Senator Wells of Haverhill (R.), Representatives Sherburne of Brookline (R.), Vallantine of Boston (R.), Fellows of Fitchburg (R.), Fitzpatrick of Lawrence (D.) and Maguire of Boston (D.).

Absent—Senator McGonagle of Boston (D.), who is understood to favor the resolve, and Representative Hurlburt of Worcester (R.), who is understood to be opposed.

LIPTON ISSUES NEW CHALLENGE FOR AMERICA'S CUP

LONDON, March 5.—It was officially announced today that a challenge by the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, made on behalf of Sir Thomas Lipton, for a race for the America's cup in 1914, has been sent to the New York Yacht Club on the Oceanic, which is due to arrive in New York tomorrow.

This will be the fourth attempt of Sir Thomas Lipton, who is one of the richest men in England, to capture the America cup for Britain again. This will be the thirteenth race between the two countries for the greatest prize in the yachting world.

Lipton has spent thousands of dollars on his attempts to lift the cup. His first trip across the Atlantic was in 1899, his second in 1901, and his last attempt came in 1903.

MAY BID FOR COLORED TRADE, SAYS COURT

The Supreme Court, in an opinion handed down today, establishes the legal right of a person in Massachusetts to advertise property for sale to colored people by displaying a sign on the property.

The particular case in question is that of Mrs. Mamie C. Morrison, the owner of a house and land near Wellington Hillside, Mattapan, who placed a huge sign on her land. On the sign she stated that she wanted to sell her property, and concluded with the words, all in large letters, "Best offer from colored family."

This raised a storm of protests from her neighbors. A bill in equity was filed against her by Wellington Holbrook, a trustee for property at Wellington Hillside, which sought to restrain Mrs. Morrison from displaying this sign and also from advertising her property for sale to colored people in the newspapers, which it is claimed she had done.

FIND GUN HIDDEN IN MUFF

Mrs. Sarah De Belle was arrested this afternoon charged with threatening to kill Judge Elijah George of the Proate Court. The woman fought the officers when arrested. In her muff was a 38-calibre revolver, fully loaded.

The woman had declared that if Judge George handed down a decision against her in her fight against her husband for the custody of their ten-year-old son, she would "get" him, the judge)

She appeared at the Probate Court room today in the Court House in Pemberton square. She showed the revolver to several persons in the courtroom. She did not talk to Judge George while in the room.

After waiting awhile for a decision in her case, she left the court room. She was followed by court officers who had notified police headquarters.

Sent to Hospital.

The woman went to the office of her lawyer, George H. Russ in the Carney Building on Tremont street. Patrolman McGinnis and Carney were sent to the lawyer's office, where they arrested the woman. She fought the officers but was finally overpowered. The loaded revolver was found in her muff.

The woman was taken to the City Hall Square Police Station and later sent to the Psychopathic Hospital for observation as to her sanity.

Mrs. De Belle is about forty years old. She was well dressed.

Found Missing Boy.

Frederick De Belle is ten years old. He was taken from the Perkins School, St. Botolph street, on Wednesday afternoon, October 9, 1912, by his father, James A. De Belle, under exciting circumstances. The boy's disappearance caused the mother, Mrs. Sarah J. De Belle, much anxiety for the time being. Young De Belle was located the following day and was given into the custody of the Children's Aid Society.

Mrs. deBelle appeared in the Probate Court the day of her son's recovery with her attorney, John F. Hurley, to fight for the child's possession. Her husband had secured a writ from the Probate Court for a temporary guardian for the boy and named Samuel Horwisser of Winthrop.

Mrs. De Belle claimed that she was entitled to the custody of the child on the ground that she secured a decree to that effect some five years ago, although the matter was not heard on its merits because of a failure to locate De Belle.

MEXICAN GUERILLA WARFARE ON BORDER LINE

MEXICO CITY, March 5.—General Carranza is reported to have sent guerilla parties to work along the northern border of Coahuila, which abuts the United States, to create trouble for the United States authorities and thus revive intervention sentiment to discredit the Huerta government.

MANY SUFFER COLDS AFTER SUFFRAGE PARADE

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5.—Many of the women and children who took part in the suffrage pageant on the steps of the Treasury building Monday were today suffering from severe colds and it was feared that some might develop cases of pneumonia. Draped only in the flimsiest garments the women and girls stood for nearly an hour on the exposed steps facing the chilling wind.

AUTO TANK EXPLODES, CHAFFEUR MAY DIE

ENGLISH AVIATOR PLUNGES TO DEATH

LONDON, March 5.—Aviator Geoffery, an Englishman, was killed when his monoplane fell while making a flight over Salisbury plain today. His motor stopped when he was 600 feet in the air and the machine plunged to earth.

"VINDICATION" FOR MEN IN BANK WRECK

Friends of John W. Dickinson, the Newton note broker found guilty with George W. Foster of wrecking the South Danvers National Bank at Peabody, seven years ago, declared today that the fact that he has never served a day in jail is a vindication for the defendant.

The famous bank case was revived today when a change was made in one of Dickinson's bondsmen in the United States District Court. The change was made because of the death of the former bondsman. The estate could not be settled until a new bondsman was secured.

Charged With $150,000 Theft.

Dickerson's friends said today that the real reason the case has never been tried again is because the government realized that it has a weak one. Most of the important witnesses are dead, and Dickinson's friends say it would be a hopeless task to attempt to bring the case into court again.

Seven years ago this month Dickinson and Foster were indicted. It was charged that Foster took $150,000 of the bank's funds. Dickinson was charged with aiding the cashier. During the trial one of the jurors became ill. Eleven jurors returned a verdict of "guilty" for both in 1906. Foster broke down on the stand and virtually "turned State's evidence."

Sentences of long terms in jail were given both men, but when the case was appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States only Dickinson was required to furnish bonds. The highest tribunal ordered a new trial for both, and the case is still pending.

Confident of Acquittal.

It is understood that counsel for Dickinson are ready to try the case at any time, and Dickinson's friends say that they are confident that a verdict of "not guilty" would be brought in. It took fourteen weeks to try Dickinson and Foster before, and Dickinson's friends declare that just as long a trial, with the expense it would bring, would be needed for a new trial of the famous bank case. Realizing these things and also with the prospects of a conviction doubtful, it is said that the government will never attempt to bring the Dickinson case into court again.

TORPEDO BOAT RAMMED, SUNK WITH 66 MEN

HAMBURG, Germany, March 5.—Sixty-six men were drowned early today when the German torpedo boat destroyer S 178 was rammed and sunk off Heligoland island by the cruiser York. Only four men were saved.

The disaster occurred in the North Sea during night manoeuvers of the German fleet. The ships were manoeuvring in the dark without lights.

The S 178 was cut in two and sunk immediately.

Emperor William while at Wilhelmshaven Monday to attend the launching of a new German dreadnought had inspected the S 178.

The disaster occurred two miles south of Heligoland island. The cruiser was steaming at half speed when she crashed into the torpedo boat destroyer amidships. There was a crush of steel on steel and a mighty rush of waters. Immediately afterwards the shouts of the crew of the destroyer rose in the darkness.

The York immediately flashed signals that a terrible accident had happened and turned her searchlight upon the damaged destroyer, which was then all but submerged.

Lights sprang up all over the fleet and wireless messages were sent to Cuxhaven giving notice that a disaster had occurred.

Boats were lowered from the nearby warships, but before they could reach the scene of disaster, the riven torpedo boat had disappeared and only bits of floating wreckage marked the grave of the vessel.

Several lifeless bodies were picked up. For hours the boats searched in the glare of searchlight, looking for survivors, but found only four.

From the suddenness of the accident it was evident that many members of the crew of the S 178 were caught and drowned like rats in a trap.

Word of the disaster was sent to Emperor William and Admiral von Tirpitz, imperial minister of marine. A rigid official inquiry was at once ordered.

The cruiser York is a powerful vessel but her bow plates were smashed by the impact and in her hull at the water line a big jagged hole was torn.

HUERTA RAISES MEXICAN ARMY TO WAR FOOTING

MEXICO CITY, March 5.—The Mexican regular army has been increased to 62,000 men, and within thirty days will number 90,000 men.

This information was obtained today from War Minister Mondragon, who with Provisional President Huerta is devoting every attention to strengthening the army. One thousand recruits a day are being added to the standing army.

Reports of a second clash between United States troops and Mexicans on the border near Douglas, Ariz., led General Diaz to send a message of warning to General Ojeda, commandant of the garrison at Agua Prieta, Mexico, opposite Douglas. Diaz pointed out the possibilities of intervention if Mexican soldiers fired across the border, "even in retaliation."

The United States Ambassador has sent a telegram to General Carranza, the rebellious Governor of Coahuila, advising him to disband his insurgent troops and swear allegiance to the government before it is too late. This telegram was sent in answer to a dispatch sent to Mr. Wilson by Carranza, in which the rebel Governor declared that his only terms of surrender are the abdication of Huerta and banishment of Felix Diaz. General Carranza favors ex-Foreign Minister Lascurain for President.

Carranza in his dispatch informed Mr. Wilson that he has 11,000 men in Coahuila, but General Mondragon, Minister of War, readily convinced Mr. Wilson that Carranza's force is less than 3,000, and that his message was misleading.

TODAY'S LATE CABLE NEWS

Boy Hangs Self While He Sleeps.

LONDON—A fine, muscular young fellow, "fond of life," as his grieving mother describes him, committed suicide in his sleep in his home in Doncaster.

The lad, eighteen years old and more than six feet tall, jolly and vivacious, was a somnambulist. Alone in his bedroom, perhaps tortured by some terrifying dream he arose in his sleep and hanged himself to the bed rail, making a noose of his necktie.

Fourth Quarto Brings $2,600.

LONDON—Twenty-six hundred dollars for a perfect copy of the fourth quarto edition of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," which was bought by Mr. Quaritch, was the feature of the sale of old books and manuscrips at Sotheby's, another of "Hamlet," sold, was bought by Mr. Sabin for $1,450.

Get Caruso and Melba.

LONDON—The King and Queen head the list of subscribers for the next season of grand opera at Covent Garden, for which Caruso and Melba have been engaged. Three new operas are to be produced and Arthur Nikisch will conduct two cycles of the "Ring."

Hungary Averts Big Strike.

BUDAPEST—The debate over the new franchise bill in the Hungarian Chamber, which threatened to bring on a general strike because of the opposition of the workmen to the measure, took an unexpectedly pacific line and there was no strike.

GARMENT WAGE DEMANDS TAKEN INTO 30 SHOPS

court today, most of them charged with interference with or assault upon operatives, shows how much work the police have had.

The extra patrolmen are needed especially at opening and closing time of the "struck" shops and through the noon hour.

The union workers are strung along the garment making districts for a half-hour prior to the opening time in the morning. They plead with operatives to join the strike.

The arrests show that, in the opinion of the police, some pickets went too far and committed assaults. Some of the assaults are alleged to be bona fide attacks. Others are admittedly technical, consisting at the most of laying detaining hands on the arm or shoulder of the operative, but more in a form of remonstrance than of attack. Nevertheless, this constitutes a technical assault in the eyes of the law.

Confer with Manufacturers.

Three thousand members of Cloakmakers' Union No. 56 are expected to strike before the end of the week. They have chosen committees and their side is now in the hands of International President Abraham Rosenberg and International Vice-President Asa Mitchell.

The settlement committee of the striking Ladies' Garment Workers' Union met at the Warren-street rooms of the Woman's Trade Union League early today to take up with twenty manufacturers the question of adjusting the strike at their respective shops.

Here are the terms of agreement demanded by the strikers, as presented to the manufacturers today for the first time:

The Terms of Agreement.

First—The weekly hours of labor shall consist of forty-nine hours in six working days, to wit, nine hours on all days except the sixth day, which shall consist of four hours only. Work shall commence at 8 a. m., and terminate not later than 6 p. m., with a full hour for lunch.

Second—Overtime work shall be paid to all week workers at the rate of double pay. Overtime work shall be limited to not more than four hours per week.

Third—No overtime to be allowed between Saturday 12 noon and 8 a. m. on Monday.

Fourth—Workers shall not be required to work on any legal holiday recognized by the State of Massachusetts, and all week workers shall get paid for these days.

Fifth—The manufacturer agrees to employ only union members who are in good standing with the aforesaid local unions.

Sixth—No one part of work shall be made by two systems—meaning week and piece work.

Seventh—No discrimination shall be made against members of the union for their union activity.

Fix Wage Conditions.

Eight—All piece prices for work not mentioned in this agreement shall be determined by the firm and a committee from the shop representing the employes. The prices shall be settled before work is commenced. A list of piece prices shall be made and hung up in a conspicuous place in the shop. All piece workers shall be furnished with small note books wherein all work made and delivered shall be entered and prices attached to it.

Ninth—Sanitary conditions. The floor of the shop shall be swept at least once a day, but under no circumstances during working hours. Also to be washed at least once a month. The windows to be cleaned at least once a month. Separate dressing rooms shall be provided for women. Also soap and towels shall be supplied free of charge. Cuspidors shall be provided in all parts of the work room. Sanitary drinking cups shall be provided, also ice water during the summer months.

Tenth—Cutters shall receive not less than $24 per week. Trimmers not less than $18.

Eleventh—Pressers not less than $23. Ironers—female—not less than $12. Male not less than $15. Underpressers not less than $18 per week.

Twelfth—Sample makers—female—$15 per week; male, $22 per week.

Thirteenth—Operators on serge dresses, waists, not less than $12 per week. Drapers $13 per week. Belt stitchers $10 per week.

Fourteenth—Finishers: First class, $10; second class, not less than $8. Prices on piece work to be figured by the actual hours' work, as follows:

Waist operators, 40 cents an hour; belt stitchers, 30 cents per hour; finishers, 25 cents an hour; silk and chiffon waist operators, 35 cents per hour. Trimmers, 40 cents per hour; sleeve makers and sleeve setters, 50 cents per hour; turners on samples, $14 per week; tuckers on silk goods, five tucks for 1 cent; tuckers on chiffon goods three tucks for 1 cent; solid tucking on chiffon, 40 cents for 100 yards; solid tucking on silk, 35 cents for 100 yards; less than one yard must be paid as one yard; examiners, not less than $11 per week; finishers, first class, $10; second class, $8.

Bar Those Under Sixteen.

Lawn waists: Operator, per hour, 30 cents; trimmers, per hour, 35 cents; six tucks for 1 cent. Lace robes and waists, yards single needle, 20 cents; sleeve makers, per hour, 30 cents; sleeve setting on union special, 10 cents per dozen; operators, 35 cents per hour for actual work by average operator.

Fifteenth—During the dull season, when there is not sufficient work to employ all workers full time, all work in the factory shall be equally distributed among all hands engaged in the various branches in the shop.

Sixteenth—A representative of the union shall be permitted to enter the factory to ascertain whether union conditions are observed.

Seventeenth—It is agreed that no manufacturer will at any time during the continuance of this agreement enter into individual agreements with any of its employes, nor shall any cash or any other form of security be accepted by them.

Eighteenth—It is further agreed that wages shall be paid every Saturday.

Nineteenth—Children under sixteen years of age shall not be permitted to work in the factory.

Twentieth—No employe shall receive less than $6 per week.

Twenty-first—All week workers not here covered by a minimum scale or those who receive now above the minimum wage shall receive an increase of not less than 15 per cent. above their present earning.

Twenty-second—In witness thereof we have hereunto set our hand and seals.

HOLLIS LACKS 4 VOTES TODAY; NO ELECTION

CONCORD, N. H., March 5.—Henry F. Hollis, Democratic candidate in the Legislature for election to the United States Senate, gained one Republican vote in the balloting today, but still lacks four votes of the number necessary for election. The ballot today was remarkable for the wholesale defection from Secretary of State Edward N. Pearson, who had lost forty-three votes on the ballot today. These votes went to Colonel John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth, who now has 93 votes and is second in the race.

Proceeding the ballot a caucus of the Republicans decided to ask the Progressives to meet them in caucus so that if possible the two parties might unite on some candidate to receive their united support.

A committee of three was appointed to meet a similar committee of the Progressives.

Today's ballot, the thirty-seventh, resulted as follows:

Whole number of votes cast	393
Necessary for a choice	198
Henry F. Hollis, D.	194
John H. Bartlett, R.	93
Edward N. Pearson, R.	79
Robert T. Bass, P.	14
Gordon W. Woodbury, D.	6
Henry B. Quimby, R.	4

THIEF WRECKS AUTO; TIES UP CAR LINE

HOLYOKE, March 5.—After stealing a touring car, an unidentified man lost control of it, smashed into a pole and tied up service on a Holyoke street railway company line two hours. The thief escaped.

NEW HAVEN IN CONFERENCE TO AVERT STRIKE

A delegation representing the telegraphers, towermen, switchmen and station agents of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad went into conference with General Superintendent C. N. Woodward and officials of the road, at the general superintendent's offices in the South Station, at 10:30 today, to discuss demands for better conditions and more pay which have been presented.

Other conferences with officials of the Boston & Maine, Maine Central and the Central New England will follow; unless the demands are granted, a general strike which would cripple the New England lines may be expected.

Before the conference today, Superintendent Woodward told the AMERICAN that the outlook was hopeful, but that not until the end of the conference, and possibly not until several more meetings, would the situation be cleared sufficiently to state that all troubles had been settled.

"The men have demanded an all-round increase of 10 per cent. They wait other things, and their demands will receive consideration at today's conference. Of the roads which might be affected by the demands, the New York, New Haven & Hartford is the only one to hold a conference with its employes today. I have made no study of the propositions advanced by the men, because I want to go into the conference with an open mind, and listen to their arguments with my mind free."

Vice-President H. J. Horn, in charge of the operating and engineering departments of the Boston & Maine, who will take a prominent part in any adjustment of wage conditions on his road, is out of town, and will not return for several days, it was announced from his office today. No conference was scheduled to take place with any of the other roads concerned.

80 SUMMER ST. - BOSTON

SOUTH BOSTON PROTESTS POOR CAR SERVICE

Though many appeals for better car service for the Peninsular district have been made to the Boston Elevated Railway Company and to the Railroad Commissioners during the past five years, those who have complained say nothing has been accomplished.

Several months ago when the line from City Point to Dudley street, via Southampton street, was established, the Boston Elevated discontinued the Dorchester street-Fields Corner line, to the discomfort of thousands of patrons living in South Boston and Dorchester.

Dr. Mignault's Petition.

Only a few weeks ago a hearing was given before the Railroad Commissioners, at which time a petition was presented by Dr. William T. Mignault of No. 840 Dorchester avenue, with 500 signatures, for the re-establishment of the line.

Among the prominent men who spoke for the re-establishment of the line were Hon. Edward D. Collins of the Governor's Council, President John J. Toomey and former President James J. Murphy of the Trade Association, Miss Alice G. Newhall of the Mattapannock Woman's Club, John H. Means, Representatives John J. Lydon and Thomas J. Casey, Patrick F. Carey, Michael J. O'Leary, William J. Feeley, Dr. E. R. Gookin, Dr. W. H. Rogers, Capt. Henry J. McKee and Senator William F. Hickey. Superintendent Brush of the Boston Elevated Railroad promised the committee of citizens to put the line back, but as yet nothing has been done.

Between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 a. m. there is an eight-minute schedule, which is not sufficient for the number of working people who depend on the Dorchester avenue line to get to their places of business.

Schedule Causes Inconvenience.

From 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. there is a fifteen-minute service, when the eight-minute time is given until 7 p. m., after which the service is run on a twenty-minute schedule, causing much inconvenience to persons who wish to get to the theatres on time.

Persons going to South Boston must ask for transfers and are compelled to wait at Andrew square, where there is no place of shelter.

Residents of that section think the Railroad Commissioners should investigate the rumors that have been heard for several years that the company presents a premium to the division superintendent who operates his division at the greatest profit and at the same time with the least expenditure of money. It is alleged that the superintendent of the Dorchester division has been the winner of the prize for several years.

THINK MAN DEAD IN CALIFORNIA IS EDWARD W. PRESHO

Boston friends of Edward W. Presho, former Republican leader in Charlestown, are convinced that the "Frank Moore," whose death is reported at Stockton, Cal., is the former Boston politician. Marked copies of Los Angeles papers containing a notice of the death of Moore have been received by several Charlestown people, who have identified the published pictures of the dead man as likenesses of Presho.

C. W. Phalen, a close friend of Presho here, is convinced that the deceased was Presho.

BRIDE DEAD, COMPANION HELD IN $5,000

Mrs. Paraska Slobodnikosa, the bride of three months who was shot mysteriously in a Quincy house yesterday, died at the Quincy City Hospital today.

Kilu Tetyc of No. 11 Sumner street, Quincy, who had been with the young Russian woman, was arraigned in the Quincy District Court today on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. He pleaded "not guilty" and was held in $5,000 for a hearing Friday, March 14.

Tetyc, through an interpreter, said he was shaving himself in the room when he heard the revolver shot. "I asked her what she had done and she said nothing. I investigated and found that she was wounded."

Chief Burrell says that the woman made a statement to him just before her death in which she said that Tetyc had asked her to go away with him, and threatened her with a revolver when she refused. She attempted to get the gun away from him and in the struggle it was discharged.

POLICE INVESTIGATE GLOUCESTER BREAKS

GLOUCESTER, March 5.—The police are busy today investigating several breaks and a mysterious attack on a girl, all in the business district in the night. Ray Williams and Ralph Harvey were passing Grillin & Cook's paint store on Main street when they heard sound of voices in the rear of the store, followed by a girl's shrill screams. The young men ran through an alley to the rear of the store, and were met, as they reported to the police, by six or seven men, who attacked them and drove them out. Williams and Harvey reported the case to the police.

Ballantyne Tells Mayor on Postal He's After the Job

Councilman Walter Ballantyne has informed Mayor Fitzgerald by a few lines written on a postcard that he (the Councilman) is going to be a candidate for Mayor of Boston this Fall. The Councilman intimated that he is not only going to run but expects to be elected.

Mrs. Ballantyne, wife of the Councilman, a few days ago received a postcard from the Mayor at Pain Beach. "Come on down," wrote the Mayor, in a joint invitation to Mr. and Mrs. Ballantyne. The former studied the card for a minute and then told his wife to pen this "retort" on another postal:

I'll visit the resort next year with the then Mayor of Boston.

FIREMEN MUST RETIRE EARLY NOW IN CHELSEA

Chelsea firemen are having their troubles. They must toe the mark now or face the consequences. They must obey a set of strict rules issued by Chief Hudson. There are some of them:

Wear black shoes; not tan.

Lights must be out in engine houses at 10 o'clock prompt.

Must not smoke while in uniform.

Chief Hudson began to look over the electric light bills the other day. He found that some of the smaller stations had larger bills in comparison than the central station. He investigated and found there had been several midnight parties. Then he issued his mandate.

Boston Clubmen Dying Fast, Allard Blames Monotony

"Boston business men and club men between forty-five and fifty-five years old are dying today faster than at any time in the city's history," Dr. Frank E. Allard of the Boston University School of Medicine declared in a lecture on "Human Efficiency," at the Evans Memorial Building. He continued:

The physician finds that monotony of occupation and lack of amusement shorten the lives of men. Piety that turns religious zeal into fanaticism, and too strict attention to business undermine constitutions. The stress of business life, lack of fresh air and sleep, overeating and excesses of all kinds are responsible for the great increase in the death rate at the age when men should be at the height of their efficiency.

NEW SERVICE RULE FOR FRENCH ARMY

PARIS, March 5.—Three years' military service without exemptions is the decision of the Paris Supreme War Council. It is deemed necessary for the nation's defence.

WAREHAM PUTS ONE MAN INTO 4 TOWN OFFICES

Ever hear of the original nothing-to-do till-tomorrow servant of the people?

Well, here he is:

CHARLES L. BATES of East Wareham. That's his name. The Wareham voters, at their annual town meeting, put him in four of the town's offices. Think of that—bidding down four jobs at one and the same time, and any one of the offices enough to keep the average man busy the better part of the twenty-four hours in the day!

Here are his four offices:

Town Clerk,
Town Treasurer,
Tax Collector,
School Committeeman.

But that isn't the end. To add to his duties, he becomes treasurer of the School Committee. Wareham, as everybody knows, includes Onset and the other Warehams—East, South and West—and is one of the best known of the shore places where Summer colonists gather.

Talk Behind Backs Is Bad for Women's Nerves, Says Cabot

Dr. Richard Cabot has four laws for women which, he says, will prevent much nervous suffering. He says most women's nerves suffer because they follow each other like sheep, talk behind their friends' backs, or worry, or think about themselves too much, or because they never stop to get perspective. In speaking on "Four Laws of Mental Hygiene" before the Malden Old and New Club, he said:

If sufferers from nervous disorders had learned my four laws of mental hygiene, most of their troubles would have been prevented. The mental and the physical are closely intertwined. My four rules are individuality, concentration, reserve and perspective.

OFFICE SEEKERS BESIEGE WILSON AT EARLY HOUR

Lindley M. Garrison of New Jersey was the first to reach the White House, being closeted with President Wilson for several minutes before the arrival of Josephus Daniels, James McReynolds, David F. Houston, Franklin K. Lane, William C. Redfield, William Jennings Bryan, William B. Wilson and Albert S. Burleson. W. G. McAdoo of New York was the last to arrive.

These gentlemen were shown to the Cabinet room, where President Wilson arranged them about the Cabinet table. Because of the fact that there is only room for nine men at the table, William B. Wilson had to seat himself apart from the others, but it is expected either that smaller chairs will be provided for the Cabinet officers, or that another larger table will be purchased so that Mr. Wilson will be able to take his place.

Has to Use T. R.'s Chair.

The President will be forced to use an old swivel chair, formerly the property of President Roosevelt, at this session, and for at least a week during subsequent meetings at the White House. President Taft took his chair away with him.

The first cabinet meeting of the new administration lasted a little more than an hour, almost all of the time being taken up with introductions and general discussion.

It was decided that for the present at least the custom of holding Cabinet sessions twice a week, on Tuesdays and Fridays at 11 o'clock would be followed.

But the President warned his advisers that he might have to call on them oftener.

At the conclusion of the session, the Cabinet officials dispersed to their several offices where they will be sworn in this afternoon as soon as the Senate confirms the nominations.

Old Cabinet Members Receive.

Almost all of the old Cabinet members were at their offices today when the new Cabinet officials appeared to assume their duties and every possible aid was extended to those who were unfamiliar with their new tasks.

When President Wilson visited his offices in the executive wing of the White House for the first time, today, he found that despite the fact that he was an early riser, half a hundred hungry Democrats had risen earlier hoping to catch the worm which is said to be the portion of the early bird. They all sought offices.

An absence of Democratic rule for the past decade and a half has made a decided scarcity of Democrats in the government service and those who worked to place President Wilson where he is today desire to remedy this condition as speedily as possible. In every department of the government there are a hundred or more posts which, usually go to the victors.

Therefore the look of worry which came to the face of President Wilson, when he caught sight of the first early birds today.

Ceremony Annoys Wilson.

The new President did not feel quite at ease in the White House today. When he entered his new home for the first time, flanked on all sides by gold braid, aides and attaches, house servants sprang forward to take his hat and coat and to attend to his wants. This was a new experience for Mr. Wilson, who is accustomed to doing things for himself.

He has never had a butler or valet and has always insisted on taking off and putting on his own coat. About the house he has been his own handy man and when it came to packing bags for a trip he always has done the most of the labor himself.

He regarded with astonishment and some dismay the efforts of his house servants to make him comfortable today. However, he is an adaptable man and will become accustomed to being waited upon.

"I felt more like a spectator than the man about whom all the fuss was being made. I would much rather have taken off my coat and buckled down to work than be a part of the great demonstration."

This was exactly how President Wilson felt about inauguration ceremonies and this is the language in which he expressed it.

Mr. Bryan has indicated that he will try to bring about an era of good feeling between this country and the South American countries. He will try to undo some of the things done by President Roosevelt. It is understood that Mr. Bryan will advocate and promote a policy of peace and harmony with all nations. Soon after he is sworn in he will announce a program that promises to be an interesting public paper of international importance.

It is believed that the Democrats will endeavor to change the entire policy of this nation toward other countries.

McCombs Offered Post Abroad.

William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has been offered one of the largest of the diplomatic posts, according to a statement of President Wilson today. He has not yet accepted it. It is believed that the President referred to the ambassadorship to France.

"Those who know my admiration and affection for Mr. McCombs will naturally wonder why his name is not on the Cabinet list," said President Wilson today. "Mr. McCombs told me he did not desire a Cabinet appointment. I have offered him one of the principal diplomatic posts and am still hoping that he will accept it. I desire men of Cabinet size for the chief foreign appointments."

President Wilson announced today that he would reappoint Edgar E. Clark for another term a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Commissioner Clark's term expired in December and his nomination for another term was sent to the Senate by President Taft, but never confirmed.

WILL THE COMING RACE BE STRONG AS THE PRESENT

"That nervous debility is sapping the ambition and vitality of the rising generation is clearly demonstrated by the number of people who are now using the new tonic, Tona Vita," said John Beasley Webb, the expert on nerves from England.

"This condition is due to an overtaxation of either physical or mental powers. The commonest symptom is failure to reap the proper benefits out of sleep. In most cases of nervous debility the subject finds that after sleep either desert them or else will be fitful and restless and broken by dreams.

"Tona Vita, which is being handled by all druggists in Boston, is particularly efficient in relieving cases of nervous debility of which this broken sleep is a symptom.

"Nervous debility, owing to the fact that it is an ailment of the nerves, can show itself in nearly any form of organic disturbance. Among the commonest symptoms, any of which may denote the trouble, are:—attacks of dizziness after any exertion; constant feeling of being tired; nervous irritability; loss of appetite; poor memory or, that general run down feeling."

HERE IS WILSON'S CABINET, AS SENT TO SENATE TODAY

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The makeup of President Wilson's family was officially settled today when the President sent the following Cabinet nominations to the Senate:

William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State.

William Gibbs McAdoo of New York, Secretary of Treasury.

Lindley M. Garrison of New Jersey, Secretary of War.

James Clark McReynolds of Tennessee, Attorney-General.

Albert Sydney Burleson of Texas, Postmaster-General.

Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, Secretary of the Navy.

Franklin Knight Lane of California, Secretary of the Interior.

David Franklin Houston of Missouri, Secretary of Agriculture.

William C. Redfield of New York, Secretary of Commerce.

William Bauchop Wilson of Pennsylvania, Secretary of Labor.

NEW CABINET WOMEN FAMED FOR BEAUTY

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The ladies of the new Cabinet are being acknowledged in Washington as aggregating an unusual amount of beauty, especially if one includes some of the daughters of the Cabinet members.

Consensus of opinion so far today yields the palm to Miss Eva McAdoo as the Cabinet beauty. This daughter of the new Secretary of the Treasury is a petite blonde. Finely arched brows curve over big blue eyes. Her features are nearly perfect. Her hair coils in ringlets about her neck.

Papa McAdoo is besieged with requests for introductions to his winsome daughter from all the young men who are in a position to ask for such a favor.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Secretary of Navy, is a comely, smiling matron, whose face and beautiful throat are well set off by evening attire.

Mrs. Albert S. Burleson, wife of the new Postmaster-General, is famed through Texas for her stately beauty and dignified simplicity of manner.

Mrs. Marshall, wife of the Vice-President, is not, strictly speaking, in the feminine cabinet, but her social position in Washington is important and she can add much to the influence of the feminine element.

The ladies of the White House will, of course, figure prominently in the social side of the administration. Mrs. Wilson is considered fortunate in having three clever daughters to assist her in the exacting duties of her position.

GALLINGER AND KERN ELECTED CAUCUS HEADS

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Senator Kern of Indiana today was elected caucus chairman by the Democratic Senators. This carries with it the title of majority leader. Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire was elected caucus chairman by the Republicans.

Prospects of a much longer session and a much wider scope of legislation under consideration than than originally planned faced the new members of the sixty-third Congress today.

The sundry civil appropriation bill which failed as a result of Ex-President Taft's veto carried appropriations of $115,000,000 and provided funds for a great variety of bureaus and projects in all the government departments.

Continuing appropriations for postoffices all over the country, for old river and harbor projects, for prosecution of the trusts and a number of such matters are held up through the failure of the bill.

The Indian appropriation bill also failed and both measures must be considered and framed by new committees.

It will be necessary to have both bills out of the way by June 30, so that they will necessarily precede tariff legislation.

Mrs. Wilson's Paintings Find No Purchasers

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Not a single one of the twenty-six landscapes painted by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the new President, has been sold during the two weeks they have been on exhibition at the Arts and Crafts Guild here, although during the past days the prices have been cut in half.

The paintings at first attracted wide attention, not only because they were from the brush of the wife of the President, but also because of their merit. The proceeds of the sale were to go to the Boys' School at Rome, Ga.

Gassy Stomach Endangers the Heart

Gas and Other Forms of Indigestion Are Quickly Relieved by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Undigested food forms gas in the stomach which causes the walls of that organ to expand and press against the heart. If this pressure should be allowed to become heavy it might result very seriously, as the heart must be kept perfectly free in order to perform its duties.

If the stomach is overworked, its muscles become tired and gradually grow weaker and weaker, until they are unable to take care of the food properly. The glands fail to provide the juices necessary to digest the food. Gases form and cause all sorts of pain, misery and wretchedness, as well as extreme danger to the heart.

It is then that the stomach calls for help. Ordinary medicines are impossible. They not only fail to help the stomach, but injure the entire system. Medical men have studied the stomach and have discovered that the digestive juices consist largely of pepsin hydrochloric acid and intestinal ferments. What, then, would be more natural than to supply these properties artificially when the stomach is unable to produce them?

That is the object of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These powerful little agents relieve the stomach of its burden, thereby giving it an opportunity to regain its normal strength. They tone up, strengthen and revitalize the secretory glands, mucous membranes, absorbing glands and muscular walls. They restore to the stomach its lost powers of digestion so that it can again do its work without assistance. They constitute a concentrated form, every element necessary to digest all sorts of food, whether acid or alkaline.

If you experience an oppressive feeling just inside the lower end of your breast bone and extending upward towards your heart, do not hesitate an instant. Get Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets from the nearest druggist at once and take one. In a few minutes the pain will leave you and you will feel better. Take a tablet after each meal for several days and your stomach will once more perform its duties. All druggists sell them at 50c a box.

RIOTOUS SCENES AS THRONG QUITS CAPITAL; LEAVES $7,000,000 THERE

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Washington today reminded one somewhat of the desolation pictured in Oliver Goldsmith's classic, "The Deserted Village."

Riotous scenes attended the exodus in the early hours of the day. Tired and impatient travelers at the Union station rushed the thin line of police, brushed them aside and tore down the iron-barred long lines of waiting railroad couches.

Subsequent efforts to dislodge them were futile. As a result many boarded wrong trains.

The scenes in the station were tumultuous. State troops and marching clubs made the big building resound with the blare of their bands. Women fainted in the crush.

Long before the parade ended yesterday the crowds rushed toward the railroad station, eager to get back home. Trains were run at intervals of every few minutes, but more than 100,000 visitors were unable to get either seats or reservations until today, although many of them waited all night at Union Depot.

With the departure of the crowd, the hotel keepers expressed their perfect willingness to rent rooms at their old rates, and the restaurateurs took away their special menu cards and displayed once again the ones in use last week which makes it perfectly possible for a person of moderate means to eat a meal without wiring home for additional funds.

It is conservatively estimated that the 300,000 visitors that came here for the dual celebration left at least $7,000,000 in the pockets of the tradespeople of this city.

PACKERS TO PAY FINE OF $102,000

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The government's $1,000,000 claim against the Chicago packers and others for taxes alleged due on colored oleomargarine sold as uncolored has been compromised by Secretary MacVeagh for $102,000.

Reproducing the arena's horrors with real martyrs

How ancient Rome's most appalling tragedy was staged for the motion pictures with real wild beasts attacking real men and women, and armed trainers "doubling" in the roles of martyrs to prevent as much real bloodshed as possible. Exclusively

OPENS UP NOSTRILS, CLEARS HEAD, ENDS COLDS OR CATARRH AT ONCE

Instantly Relieves Swollen, Inflamed Nose, Head, Throat—You Breathe Freely—Dull Headache Goes—Nasty Discharge Stops.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning! the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

CHALLENGE SALE at the Henry Siegel Store

Thursday and Friday, March 6th and 7th, We Will Conduct in This Store a Sale That Has No Precedent in the Annals of New England Merchandising From the Standpoint of Bargain Importance

THE Henry Siegel store, backed by the great Siegel chain of stores, stands supreme in buying power among New England's large stores. We are in a position to underbuy and undersell any competing establishment and this great Two-Day Sale has been planned to prove conclusively the utter futility of competitive effort against the combined power of the great chain of stores that Mr. Siegel has organized and which now stand pre-eminent in the retail world.

THIS page of values heralds the most tremendous response ever accorded a sale announcement. Value-giving such as this is absolutely unprecedented. There's something here for everybody at the lowest price they ever paid. It will be worth anyone's while to come and see how wonderfully we have organized to handle the greatest crowds that ever thronged to a Boston store.

CASSIDY SAYS BENZOATE IS UNNECESSARY UNLESS FOODS ARE DECAYING

Mr. Cassidy today discusses the stand taken by Dr. Carl L. Alsberg, successor to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley in the government food department, who has declared himself against the use of benzoate of soda in food. This decision by Dr. Alsberg is a source of gratification to every friend of pure food, according to Mr. Cassidy, and is another proof that benzoate is not necessary in any food industry, if proper materials and methods are employed in that industry.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

One of the first official acts of Dr. Carl L. Alsberg, successor to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley as chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, has been to declare himself as opposed to the use of benzoate of soda in foods.

I was glad to see this, and I think it will gratify every friend of food purity.

I have frequently stated my position on the use of benzoate. It is this:

It is a dangerous or poisonous substance.

It is not necessary to be used in food if that food is properly prepared, and if the materials used are in good condition.

When It Is Useful.

Where catsup is made of rotten tomatoes, or of tomatoes which have begun to decompose—or where any product is made of fruit which has begun to "turn," benzoate is almost a necessity. But if the product is made of fresh fruit, the usual condiments are sufficient preservative.

Dr. Alsberg's plan, as I understand it, is this:

He will continue prosecutions of manufacturers for the excessive use of benzoate.

And he will undertake a campaign of education to show those manufacturers that benzoate is not necessary in their products.

I believe he should also fight for a regulation absolutely prohibiting the use of benzoate of soda in food, for the reasons given above—but, of course, his policy is for him to determine.

It is interesting in this connection to notice the comment of Dr. Wiley upon his successor's announcement. Dr. Wiley said the other day in Washington:

What Wiley Says of It.

"More than six years ago the bureau of chemistry began the work of demonstrating to manufacturers the uselessness and the harmfulness of benzoate of soda in foods.

"It also demonstrated that sulphur is not needed in the preparation of dried fruits, and with these demonstrations there were others, showing exactly how foods can be prepared without the use of these harmful materials.

"Dr. Bitting and Dr. Bigelow went through the country making these demonstrations. The newspapers reported on the subject, reports which were pigeonholed in the department. In his report, Dr. Bitting was not permitted to mention benzoate of soda, but he does tell how foods can be prepared without its use.

"Constructive work along these lines was the feature of Dr. Wiley's labors while I was chief. Demonstrations which built up the beet sugar industry and increased the yield of cane sugar were part of this work.

Hidden Away in Files.

"In addition, there was the work of Mr. Gore of the department showing how fresh fruits and fruit juices might be preserved without the use of harmful preservatives.

"All this information Dr. Alsberg can find in the files of the department. Much of it has been kept in the files by order of the executive heads of the department, who did not want it made use of, but it is all there, and Dr. Alsberg will find it ready for his use if he is disposed to use it.

"He will also find that manufacturers of food products know that they do not have to use benzoate of soda and that, being already enlightened upon the subject, it is now necessary to give them more enlightenment, but that some insistence upon their observance of the present practices will be productive of good."

That statement from Dr. Wiley is a remarkably interesting one. It is quite true that manufacturers know they need not use benzoate if they use proper methods in the preparation of their food products.

How Housewives Do It.

If the manufacturers were not convinced of this, they could easily convince themselves by questioning some of your good old New England house wives, whose products, catsup and preserves are innocent of other preservative than sugar and spices, a scrupulously clean bottle, and the best of picked fruit.

I heard of another case the other day, which demonstrates that benzoate is not necessary. Catsup manufacturers will often tell you—"Sure, we must use benzoate—otherwise the catsup will sour after it is opened."

Two big national manufacturers—the biggest of them all—are not using benzoate today. A friend of mine bought a bottle of catsup put out by one of these companies, opened the bottle and used over half of it in May of one year. The bottle, open, stood on the pantry shelf for seven months and was not touched again till December. Then the catsup was found still perfectly sweet. This without benzoate.

Two Bottles Bought Here.

In the records of my purchases in Boston I find a case where I purchased two bottles from the same store. Compare these two bottles with this.

One—Net weight eight ounces, contained no benzoate and sold for 12 cents.

The other—Net weight 11½ ounces, contained one-tenth of one per cent. benzoate, and sold for 10 cents.

That is, an ounce of catsup without benzoate cost a cent and a half. An ounce with benzoate cost eight-tenths of a cent. THE CATSU. WITH BENZOATE IS ABOUT HALF THE PRICE OF THE CATSUP WITHOUT BENZOATE.

Made From Scraps and Refuse.

Why is this so?

Because the catsup WITH benzoate was made of the scraps and the refuse of the factory where the ripe fruit went into catsup WITHOUT benzoate.

When you buy catsup containing benzoate, you take the chance of eating decayed, decomposed, putrid or tainted fruit. When you buy catsup free from benzoate, you are sure that any decayed fruit will betray itself by taste or smell.

The housewives of New England can do no better, as a beginning in the fight for pure food, than to refuse to buy catsup containing benzoate of soda.

CHILDREN OFTEN HAVE WEAK KIDNEYS AND BLADDER TROUBLE

Have lived in Galeton for over thirteen years and for the past eight years have been in the Hotel business.

We have a family of four children and they all had weak kidneys, more or less, and gave me considerable trouble, until some friend told me to use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. That was eight years ago, and since that time our medicine chest always contains a bottle of Swamp-Root, and we use it, with splendid results, as our children are hearty, healthy and robust.

Previous to using your valuable remedy, we tried several doctors' prescriptions without receiving any lasting benefits.

I heartily recommend to all mothers the use of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for their children.

Yours truly,
MRS. AUGUST HEYMANN,
Galeton, Penna.

Sworn and subscribed before me, this 14th day of May, 1912.

HERE IS A REAL DYSPEPSIA CURE

"Pape's Diapepsin" Settles Upset Stomachs and Ends Indigestion in Five Minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work sour, thereby mixed into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructation of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

HALF OF THE ALPHABET IN LATEST SLANG

Down in Middleboro folks are coining words every day. The last Middleboro addition to the English slang language is sent to the Slang Editor of the AMERICAN by Patrick M. Power of that town. He sends his postoffice box number, too, hoping that he will capture the $5 prize offered by this newspaper for the best slang word or expression sent in. Here is Mr. Power's new word, SUPERCOLLYFLAGICAL. "Means pleased with the world at large," says Mr. Power. Did you guess it?

"Don't get Jeffie or I'll Mutt you," writes A. G. of Adams, Mass.

"I'll write to Carter about you, he's looking for men of straw," comes from Thomas Mead, No. 111 Thames street, Newport, R. I.

"You are as funny as the Weather Man. You are always changing," remarks Miss Bessie Sweeney, an East Boston girl.

"Hank Lowe's as a slang word for money sent in by J. E. Chatterton, No. 28 Federal street, Providence, R. I.

"This is weird chatter" comes from W. Burns, No. 10 East street, Dorchester.

"Your are the butter on the bread all right," is the entry of M. Thomas, No. 534 Newbury street, Boston.

This from Mrs. R. C. Babb, No. 66 School street, Middleboro: "Don't be a GHARALL. Give the other fellow a chance."

"Don't think you are the whole ocean because you have a wave in your hair," writes Ruth Worthing, a seventh grade school pupil, who lives at No. 15 Plummer street, Everett.

"Don't think you are the whole band because you have a drum in your ear," comes from half a dozen contestants. The first of these entries was from Mrs. J. Norwood, No. 70 Bradford street, Lawrence, Mass.

"I should worry and build a hospital and lose my patients (patience)" is the suggestion of Margaret Cotter, No. 7 Park street, Roxbury. Look for more entries in tomorrow's AMERICAN.

CO. L TO CELEBRATE BOSTON MASSACRE

Company L of the Sixth Infantry, colored, will commemorate the Boston Massacre and the heroism of Crispus Attucks tonight in their armory at No. 7 Green street, by a meeting, at which Edward Everett Brown of the city collector's department, will give a special reading.

CHOOSE NEW LICENSE CLERK FOR CHELSEA

Dennis Mahoney, clerk of the Chelsea Licensing Board for a year, was removed, and his place filled by Simon Cohen, at the first meeting since Mayor Willard appointed two new board members.

BIG OVATION FOR BARNABEE AT "PIRATES"

Rapt of attention, his venerable white head bowed with intentness, and involuntarily swaying as he breathed in the airs he so long had sung, Henry Clay Barnabee, beloved of all Gilbert and Sullivan opera-goers, led the applause at the Majestic Theatre last evening.

The opera was "The Pirates of Penzance," in which the distinguished Boston singer had shone so brightly in the famous Bostonians.

As the curtain went down on the first act the attention of the audience shifted from the stage to the box where Mr. Barnabee was holding a reception, many in the house greeting him with a word of remembrance of days gone when he was on the other side of the footlights.

The reception extended to behind the scenes, where those of the present cast who had appeared on the same stage with him insisted that he repeat.

"I have the hardest time of it to keep from becoming reminiscent and boring you with stories of the old days," he remarked. "And goodness knows in these days there is scant time for consideration of times gone by.

"I do wish to say, however, that the revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas is dear to me, and, I think, significant of the spirit of the day.

"These works, I must agree with Mr. Cowles (who had just spoken in response to a curtain call) are classics unmarred by any fault. The presentation of the 'Pirates of Penzance' tonight indicates to me that it will go on forever."

Upon his reappearance in his box from his trip behind, he was given a round of applause from the whole house, applause which affected him very deeply and to which he replied with his familiar wave of the hand and tossed kiss.

The cast, still including some of the old favorites so dear to Bostonians, was as follows:

Richard, a pirate chief	Eugene Cowles
Samuel, his lieutenant	Arthur Cunningham
Frederic, a pirate apprentice	Arthur Aldridge
Major-General Stanley of the British Army	George Marlan
	Grace Marlan
Edward, a sergeant of police	De Wolf Hopper
Mabel, General Stanley's youngest daughter	Elsie Baker
	Blanche Duffield
Kate	Louise Harthel
Edith	Viola Gillette
Isabel	Grace Lyon
"General" Stanley's daughters
Ruth, a piratical "maid-of-all-work"	Kate Condon

The "Pirates" will be repeated Friday evening. "Patience" will be given at a special matinee tomorrow and tomorrow evening.

MANY PATRONIZE BREAD LINE AT THE HOLLIS ST. THEATRE

Scores of half starved, shivering men, women and children, many of whom had almost forgotten there is such a thing as a square meal, formed in a long line on Common street last evening and were given food hot from the ovens of the fully equipped restaurant which is part of the setting in the last act in "The Governor's Lady."

To make that scene of the show more realistic, David Belasco, noted for giving attention to the most minute scenic details of his productions, ordered that real pies, rollers, bread, wheat cakes and other good things to eat galore should be placed in the ovens and upon the stoves on the stage.

Every night these things are cooked fresh. And so the managers of the show decided to give away all the day's supply of eatables to those who apply at the stage entrance after the last act. Scores of needy Boston people will tell you today that the idea is a good one.

There will be another bread line at the stage entrance of the theatre tonight.

Eliot Describes "Ideal Plan" for Profit Sharing

President Emeritus Charels W. Eliot of Harvard told 300 Harvard students in a lecture on the relations of employers and employes, that after years of study and research he has discovered a successful profit-sharing system in operation in a Cambridge factory. Dr. Eliot declared that profit-sharing is the "best method of bringing into play the motives that govern the employe." He said the Cambridge factory in which the plan is being carried out is within two miles of Harvard. He said:

The successful system I found in the Cambridge factory could well be used with men who make $10,000 or $20,000 a year. This factory employs about 500 hands of all nationalities, few of whom are skilled laborers. On January 1 of each year a preliminary list is printed of the names of those employes who have been in continuous service for the previous twelve months. The men named are entitled to share in the percentage of net profits of the company if they are still employed on March 1 of the following year.

The results have been highly encouraging; the workers practically did away with all waste and increased the profits, since they were working for their own interests as well as the company's.

Bedford Decides Fate of Police Chief Tonight

This is the big question that will be settled tonight at a town meeting which bids fair to be exciting from the time the moderator calls the meeting to order until the janitor of the town hall locks the doors.

Bedford has already voted for license. The meeting tonight concerns Edward P. Kelley, chief and private of the police force. He is paid a regular salary and has a regular beat just like a regular policeman.

The Rev. David C. Torrey of the Bedford Congregational Church says that Chief Kelley has not enforced the liquor laws. He further retaliates with charges against the pastor. It will all be threshed out at the red hot town meeting tonight.

CARUSO WILL SING HERE ON MARCH 18

Director Russell of the Boston Opera House has been informed from New York that he had prevailed upon Enrico Caruso to come to Boston for one appearance before the close of the season. The performance will be outside the subscription series, the date being Tuesday, March 18. "Pagliacci" is the opera chosen, Canio being the great tenor's greatest role. It is likely that Wolf-Ferrari's Mozartean opera, "The Secret of Suzanne" will be the companion piece of the evening.

FREED ON CHARGE OF ATTACKING OFFICER

Charles Mackle, twenty-six, of No. 93 H street, was acquitted today of the charge of assault upon Police Officer William J. Quigley of Station 15. Mackle testified that he asked Quigley why the latter was circulating stories about him and that the officer replied by striking him and then arrested him. Joseph Keating, a companion of Mackle, corroborated his testimony.

MACNEZ TO SING IN 'RIGOLETTO' TONIGHT

Umberto Macnez, an Italian tenor who made a popularity with the Bohemian girl, Leo Slezak, will sing for the first time before a Boston audience tonight, as the star in the season's first subscription performance of "Rigoletto," at the Opera House.

MILITANTS TO "STAGGER HUMANITY"

LONDON, March 5.—As the result of threats of the Women's Social and Political Union to begin a new campaign of violence that "will stagger humanity to the core the world over" extra guards were placed about Parliament building and Buckingham Castle today.

The extraordinary police and military precautions indicated that Scotland Yard fears the women will attempt to blow up these two buildings with dynamite.

Details of the Royal Household Guards are co-operating with the police about Buckingham Palace and no woman is allowed to approach unless she is positively known. Every suspicious looking female venturing near the palace is held up and questioned.

Police and plain clothes detectives swarmed Parliament square. Strict orders have been issued by Home Secretary McKenna to allow no woman in the building unless she can present an official passport and is properly identified.

Sinister Warning Issued.

A warning has been issued from the militant headquarters that historic buildings are in imminent peril. As a consequence St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey and the British Museum are being closely guarded. It is feared that the museum cases may be broken and priceless manuscripts destroyed by some corrosive fluid.

Organized raids on Parliament will be resumed when the Commons reassembled and attempts will be made to kidnap members of the cabinet. A startling prophecy display will be made from the Strangers' Gallery during the debates.

Shadow Mrs. Pankhurst.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who is free on bail, pending her trial on the charge of inciting women to blow up the residence of Chancellor David Lloyd George, visited the headquarters of the Woman's Social and Political Union today and conferred with the "violence committee" of women appointed to devise new methods of destroying property and harrassing the government. She is under constant surveillance of detectives.

Inspector McCarthy of Scotland Yard held a conference with Home Secretary McKenna and it was decided to employ extra guards for all public buildings until further notice.

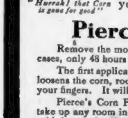
Luscious Grapes are more Tasty than Dry Raisins

Dried-out raisins cannot be compared to Nature's luscious Grapes. Tobacco when pressed in Plug form has more flavor, fragrance and smoking quality than when sliced or granulated for convenience sake.

Chopping or granulating ruins the natural tobacco flavor, as it cannot retain its natural moisture, and every bit of evaporated moisture takes with it some of Nature's good tobacco flavor.

The only way to retain all the flavor is to put the whole leaves under pressure, into Plug form, and covering it with a natural leaf wrapper, thereby retaining all of its natural flavor and moisture.

Prove this today by buying a plug of Master Workman tobacco. Whittle off a fresh pipe load, and enjoy a slow burning cool smoke of delicious flavor.



"Hurrah! that Corn is gone for good"

Freedom From Corns

Suffering from corns is unnecessary. You can put a stop to it by buying one box of Pierce's Corn Plasters. Every box is sold under a binding guarantee to cure. If it doesn't, the druggist will give you back your money.

Pierce's Corn Plasters

Remove the most painful and stubborn corn in 5 days. In most cases, only 48 hours are required. They work quickly and easily.

The first application stops the pain almost instantly. The Plaster loosens the corn, root and all, so that you can rub it off with your fingers. It will not come back.

Pierce's Corn Plasters are so thin that they do not take up any room in the shoe. For eleven years we've sold thousands of boxes under our money-back guarantee. That's the strongest possible proof that they make good. Be sure you get the genuine.

BOSTON SOCIETY WOMAN BARMAID ABOARD LINER

Mrs. M. J. Stock, former wife of Frederic J. Stock, Jr., of Boston and well known in Boston society, scored a success as a barmaid aboard the Pacific Mail steamship Korea at San Francisco, after she and Miss Alice O'Connor had driven the Chinese barboys from behind the bar. They realized $400 for the Sailors' Home in San Francisco as a result of their stunt, a dispatch today from San Francisco says.

Wearing Chinese costumes, Mrs. Stock and Miss O'Connor ran through the saloon, behind the bar and ushered the Chinese barboys away. The passengers looked on in wonder. Then the young women smilingly announced they were ready to serve the drinks.

The bar did a more thriving business than it had all the way across the Pacific. Men forgot their New Year's resolutions. Women who ordinarily drink no more than a thimbleful of wine engaged drained long glasses of various decoctions. For hours the two barmaids did a rushing business.

Mrs. Stock is well known socially in Boston. Four years ago she obtained a divorce. Mr. Stock is the son of a wealthy Michigan flour merchant, and is connected with his father's Boston office.

The Stocks had a beautiful home at No. 711 Washington street, Brighton, after the divorce. Mrs. Stock went to live with friends on Newbury street. Since then she has traveled.

ECZEMA LIKE RASH ITCHING INTENSE

Could Not Sleep at Night, Scratched, Causing Sores to Form. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In Two Months Ear All Healed.

R. F. D. No. 2, Southbridge, Mass.—"I had eczema in one of my ears that made me suffer a good deal. I could not sleep at night

It would itch so. The eczema broke out like a rash and the itching was so intense that I scratched, causing sores to form. My ear was nothing but a raw sore and I could not get the skin to grow, as it would run and then when it would dryfor a few days, would make scales. I was ashamed to go anywhere my ear looked so badly.

"I used ——— and two kinds of ointment, also ——— Soap and Ointment and ——— Ointment without any relief. So I sent for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and when I had used them two weeks I began to see they were helping me, so I bought some Cuticura Soap and Ointment and kept on using them. I washed my ear three times a day with Cuticura Soap and then put the Cuticura Ointment on and in two months' time my ear was all healed up." (Sign'd) Mrs. Alex. Bouvier, Nov. 12, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, dry, thin and failing hair, and cost so little that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold by dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

A Physician's Substitute for Dangerous Calomel.

When you feel that your liver and bowels need help take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after effects.

Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice treating patients for all kind of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take, but unfailing in results.

Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10 and 25 cents per box. The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, O.

MISSES DOROTHY BRICKER (at top) and ADA HEINSTEIN, Boston girls who will act as officers at the annual ball of the Progressive Self-Educational club tonight.

Elaborate plans were completed today for the fourth annual ball of the Progressive Self-Educational Club, which is to be held tonight in Intercolonial Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury. The ball is to be given for the benefit of the club's scholarship fund, and a big attendance is expected.

The club was organized in 1906 by students of the English language at a North End settlement house, and its aim has been to send as many students as possible through college. So successful has it been that at the present time over half of its seventy members are either graduates or students of various colleges, among them Harvard, Technology, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Tufts, Radcliffe, Boston University and others.

The officers who will direct the dances are: Abraham Colmes, chief marshal; Dr. George Kramer, floor manager; Miss Ada Heinstein, assistant floor manager; Miss Dorothy Bricker, chief of aids; Miss Gertrude Trachtenberg and Charles Golub, assistants; Morris A. Leavitt, chairman reception committee; Max Dana, chief usher; A. M. Cheinstein, chairman ball committee.

THIRTY HURT IN N. Y. STRIKE RIOT

NEW YORK, March 5.—Thirty persons, including one policeman, were injured today when 100 striking garment workers attacked thirty-four strikebreakers, who were on their way to work at the clothing factory of Samuel Peck & Co., in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn. The police reserves were called out and quelled the disturbance by free use of their clubs. Five were arrested, two being sixteen-year-old girls.

PROTEST PLAN TO REDISTRICT CUSTOM AREA

Protests came from many New England cities today against Ex-President Taft's plan for the reorganization of the customs service. The plan reduces the existing 165 districts to forty-nine, formed largely along State lines, and 116 of the offices of collectors of customs will be abolished.

In Massachusetts the collectors in Gloucester, Salem, Provincetown, Plymouth, Barnstable, Vineyard Haven, Fall River, New Bedford, Worcester, Springfield and Holyoke will be dismissed and the customs house in those places made part of the Boston district.

New Bedford citizens who have been aware of the plan for some time have opposed it, and a delegation of citizens headed by Mayor Ashley has been in Washington to voice their protest in person.

New Bedford Protests.

Acting Mayor Robert T. Sherman of New Bedford said today:

"It is a shame that New Bedford should loose its identity as a port of entry and that its customs house collections should be transferred to Boston. It was not to be expected, in view of the fact that New Bedford is rated as the fifth port in New England and the third in the State.

"New Bedford's custom house has always been self-supporting. New Bedford has done more than any other city in the State outside of Boston to develop its port."

George R. Briggs, president of the New Bedford Board of Trade, said:

"It is incomprehensible that President Taft could approve this plan of customs consolidation. It is the work of Mr. Curtis, who is nothing more than a Lodge boomer. In the face of the opposition of Senators Crane and Lodge and most of our representatives I do not understand why President Taft sent this message. I think I am voicing the sentiment of all New Bedford business men in saying that we are absolutely disgusted."

Edmond Wood, lumber dealer, said: "To take the custom house from New Bedford is like taking away an honor. I hope that under the new arrangement the efficiency of the service will not be impaired."

Field for Smugglers.

Edward T. Marvell, collector of the port of Fall River, said today:

"As far as I am concerned, I am willing to step out of this office any time. Conditions lately have become almost unbearable. In the past the collections per month have averaged several hundred dollars, but owing to gambling in the Canadian money, the receipts per month for some time past and up to the present, have averaged but $5 or $6 a month.

"This cry of reducing expenses is ridiculous. It is apparent to everyone what the abolition of custom houses in these cities will mean. Take the county of Barnstable, for instance, which is down on the Cape. The abolition of the custom house in that county will afford a fine opportunity for smugglers. The same condition of affairs would soon exist in the ports of Maine where foreign steamers are often wont to seek harbors of refuge."

HELD FOR TRIAL ON CHARGE OF ENTICING GIRL OF 16 AWAY

Charged with enticing sixteen-year-old Sophia Dolan of No. 24 Dixfield street, South Boston, away from her home Albert H. Pickard, a moving picture lecturer of London, England, waived examination in court today and was held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

The girl was found alone at Bethel, Vt., after her father had searched the northern tier of New England States for his daughter. He was gone nearly two months. Pickard was arrested at Keene, N. H.

Calls the Glacier Park in Montana 'Alps of America'

Howard A. Noble of St. Paul, Minn., general passenger agent of the Great Northern Railway Company, passed through Boston today on his way to attend the Travel and Vacation Exhibition at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 20 to 29.

While in Boston Mr. Noble took occasion to praise the beauty and scenery at Glacier National Park which was established in Northwestern Montana by act of Congress two years ago. The park extends from the Canadian border to the Flathead river in Montana.

It is on the main line of the Great Northern Railway and easily accessible from points East and West. Mr. Noble declares it is far superior in natural advantages to Yellowstone National Park. Since the park was opened in 1910 many improvements have been made by the government. Roads and trails have been established.

The Great Northern Railway has built hotels at each entrance of the park and has established fifty camps at points in the park most accessible to its natural wonders. In the park are twenty mountains, each 10,000 feet or more above the sea level. Mr. Noble says the railway intends to lend its assistance in making the park a tourists' paradise and he predicts it will soon be called the "Alps of America."

At the Travel and Vacation Exhibition in New York will be sea cruise Pecan Indians, a part of whose tribal reservation is in the park. These Indians are guides in the national reservation, and they will tell visitors of the grandeur of its mountain scenery and other beauties.

In addition there will be on exhibition views and stage settings, reproductions of some of the prettiest portions of the park.

DRAW OUT $1,000,000 DEPOSITS IN RUN ON MONTREAL BANK

MONTREAL, March 5.—Depositors of the City and District Savings Bank continued today a run on that institution which was started late yesterday afternoon by a number of frightened depositors. There are great crowds around each branch of the bank, which has an unusually large number of small depositors.

Financial men of the city declare there is absolutely no cause for any depositor to be alarmed. Over a million dollars was withdrawn by depositors before the bank closed its doors late yesterday.

SHOE MACHINERY MEN ANSWER IN FEDERAL ACTION

The United Shoe Machinery Company and three of its officers filed answers in the United States District Court today, denying all allegations in the so-called Goddu and Cilley damage suits of $2,000,000 and $1,000,000, respectively.

Four separate answers were filed to each suit. One is by the United Shoe Machinery Company. The other three are each by Sidney W. Winslow, president, and Edward F. Hurd and George W. Brown, other officers, of the defendant corporation.

The Goddu suit was brought by Charles A. Strout of Portland, Me., as trustee for the Goddu Bona Metal Fastening Company. It is an action under the Sherman act, in which damages of $2,000,000 are demanded. It is claimed that the Goddu concern was driven out of business as a result of alleged illegal acts on the part of the defendants.

In the answers today all the Strout allegations are denied. The defendants say that the cause of the Strout action did not accrue within six years before suing out of the plaintiff's writ, meaning that any alleged grievance is outlawed by the statute of limitations.

The defendants deny that the plaintiff owned any valuable patents or patent rights, maintaining that all the patents and interest rights claimed by the Goddu concern were infringements of United Shoe Machinery Company's patents.

The so-called Cilley suit is a similar one for $1,000,000, brought by Harry E. Cilley under the Sherman act. In its answer to this the United Shoe Machinery Company makes a general denial of the plaintiff's allegations of having been driven out of business by illegal acts and monopoly of the defendant.

SCOTT'S WIDOW TO PUBLISH HIS DIARY

LONDON, March 5.—Lady Scott, widow of the explorer, has telegraphed from New Zealand to Reginald Smith that her husband's journal is in her possession, "excellent and complete." The whole journal will be published by Smith, Elder & Company. The Strand Magazine will print two, or perhaps three, preliminary articles.

HERRICK RESIGNS AS AMBASSADOR

PARIS, March 5.—Myron T. Herrick, United States Ambassador to France, has sent his resignation to President Wilson, following the usual custom of American diplomats to resign when the presidency changes hands.

BISHOP LAWRENCE TO SPEAK NOONTIMES

Bishop Lawrence will deliver the noonday addresses at St. Paul's Cathedral from March 10 to 14 inclusive. On Sunday, March 9, Rev. Arthur W. Moulton of Lawrence will preach at the afternoon service, and Dean Rousmaniere in the evening.

BROCKTON GIRL BRIDE IN LODGE ROOM ROMANCE

BROCKTON, March 5.—When Miss Violet F. Rowell of No. 219 Pine street became Mrs. George A. Knight of Randolph, a romance which began in Miss Rowell's successful campaign for deputy of the New England Order of Protection was revealed.

Miss Rowell a year ago was just eighteen and one of the most popular members of the Turkawanda lodge to which Mr. Knight also belonged. Soon after they had been introduced in the lodge room, Mr. Knight tried to persuade Miss Rowell to run for deputy. She demurred, but he persisted, promising his support. Finally she consented and the campaign was on.

Mr. Knight made himself her campaign manager. The contest proved successful, and the young woman now has the distinction of being the youngest deputy of the order.

This Store Is Headquarters for the Famous Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

The fashionable woman used to count her complexion first and her figure second in her armament of charms.

But today she has learned to think deeper, and place her corset first and foremost—since on it depends so vitally both complexion and figure.

Warner's Rust-Proof is the magic name by which many conjure the style and beauty of line needed to set off the gowns of the day, and give the poise, elegance and grace to wear them with charm.

No figure of any type, stout or slender, that the right Warner model will not beautify. And they're most economical as well as fashionably shaped and long-wearing.

Before Buying the New Spring Suit, Visit Us for a Warner Corset

There can be no grace or charm of dress without, first and foremost, comfort. Given that, found and preserved in a perfect-fitting, perfectly adapted corset that brings out and enhances every beauty-point of her figure, and the charm of the outer garments follows of itself.

When we say that the new Warner models are more stylish than ever before, we mean simply that they have been designed so exactly line for line with fashion's decrees that by wearing a Warner Corset you are preparing yourself to wear with elegance any fashionable gown or suit of the season.

AN "AMERICAN PLAN" FOR THE READERS OF THIS PAPER TO SECURE A FINE NEW UPRIGHT PIANO

CHARLES S. NORRIS, 181 TREMONT ST. BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 5, 1913 CHARLES S. NORRIS, 181 TREMONT ST.

PRAISE For THE AUTOPIANO From HIS HOLINESS, POPE PIUS X.

(Permission to publish granted Charles S. Norris, 181 Tremont Street, Boston)

Although many medals have been awarded to the Autopiano, no honor received is considered greater than that bestowed on this marvelous instrument by His Holiness, Pope Pius X., who presented the Autopiano Co. with a handsome gold medal as a recognition of the artistic merit of the Autopiano.

The following letter accompanied the medal:

Del Vaticano.

Sir:—His Holiness charges me to thank you for the beautiful instrument just received, and desires that I send you the two medals inclosed, one for Gustin Wright & Co. and the other for The Autopiano Co., as a recompense for its artistic merit.

R. CARD. MERRY DEL VAL.

The Autopiano is the world's greatest player piano. It is the most musical of all self-playing instruments and is endorsed by the most famous artists of our time. Will play for you (without any knowledge of music or playing on your part) the world's greatest music, new and old. All opera and popular music prepared for the Autopiano as soon as published and loaned to you without charge by the sole Boston Agent, Chas. S. Norris, 181 Tremont street.

A great many people have in their home what is practically a "Dead piano." No one knows how to play it—son and daughter who used to play and entertain the family have married and the piano is now merely an expensive ornament. Now is the time to get an Autopiano—put in the music roll, start it—That's all you have to do.

You can exchange your old piano for an Autopiano. We have a plan that will allow you to exchange, giving you the full value for your exchange.

His Imperial Majesty, Ahmed Mizra, the Shah of Persia, possesses an Autopiano, and as a recognition of its merit has presented to The Autopiano Company a gold medal and appointed them purveyors of the Imperial Court of Persia.

MARY GARDEN SAYS:

I was much pleased to listen to your rendition of the Autopiano, which is the height of ingenuity when it comes to playing the piano by means of a music-roll. Your instrument follows thoroughly the interpretation of the performers, giving a dignified reading of the classics. By your system for accenting the melody, one is led to imagine hearing the vivety touch of a Paderewski, and it seems to live and breathe.

Sincerely, MARY GARDEN.

Will play for you (without any knowledge of music or playing on your part) the world's greatest music, new and old. All opera and popular music prepared for the Autopiano as soon as published and loaned our patrons without charge.

TETRAZZINI SAYS:

The Autopiano is a blessing to humanity. It should be in every home, for it brings with it the culture and refinement which only the compositions of the great masters afford. I find I can play the great operas with the same feeling and expression with which I sing them. I love to play it—it is wonderful—there is no player piano to equal it.

Faithfully yours,

LUISA TETRAZZINI

VICTOR HERBERT SAYS:

An Autopiano is also in the home of Victor Herbert, the world-famous popular American composer, whose light operas, "Naughty Marietta," "Mlle. Modiste," "It Happened in Nordland," "Algeria," etc., charm and delight audiences everywhere. His endorsement and praise is therefore praise indeed:

Mr. Richard W. Lawrence, President,
The Autopiano Co., 31st, 32d and 33d Sts., New York.

Dear Mr. Lawrence:—I want you to know that the Autopiano in my home has been a source of pleasure to the entire household. I can readily understand its remarkable success, now that I am thoroughly familiar with its many points of excellence. It is wonderful how artistic are the effects that may be had in playing it with the music-roll, while as a piano for hand playing it is an instrument of remarkable quality. Any home possessing an Autopiano has, in my opinion, a splendid equipment for musical pleasure.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) VICTOR HERBERT.

MARY YOUNG
(Mrs. John Craig)
SAYS:

Chas. S. Norris, 181 Tremont st., Boston:

Gentlemen—I love my Autopiano. I wish that all my friends could have one. After a thorough investigation of the different Player Pianos I decided on an Autopiano for my home, on account of its exquisitely beautiful tone and its wonderful expression. Sincerely,

MRS. JOHN CRAIG (Mary Young),
Castle Sq. Theatre.

MOST INTERESTING PIANO NEWS FOR AMERICAN READERS

ARRANGEMENTS have been made whereby any reader of this newspaper can secure a fine new Upright Piano of almost any of the best well-known makes at a price that is lower than ever before quoted by any Piano House. The pianos will be sold on what we call our "American Plan," which enables any responsible man or woman who will set aside a few pennies a day to secure a piano at once. No waiting and no large payments down. Ample provision made in our "American Plan" against sickness, loss of work, etc. We have investigated and closely examined every "easy term" plan of selling pianos on credit that is being operated in Boston and New England, and none of them can be compared to our "American Plan." There is no home that cannot have a fine piano. Get some member of the family to sign and mail to us today the coupon printed below, and we will send information that will surprise you. How we do it and why we do it told plainly and honestly. Mail the coupon at bottom of page today.

ARE YOU DEPRIVING YOUR CHILDREN OF A MUSICAL EDUCATION?

If you are you will surely regret it some day. Your girl or boy may have slumbering somewhere in the soul the spark of genius. Who knows? Remember that almost all the great composers were in their childhood days without advantages—and it remained for some intelligent person to assist them and help in the development of that musical genius that has for centuries delighted and educated the whole world.

IF YOUR NEIGHBOR'S CHILD HAS A PIANO WHY SHOULDN'T YOURS HAVE ONE?

Say to yourself—"Yes, My child shall have the advantages that I, as an American citizen, am today able, and easily able, to give her."—Fill out the coupon today—Don't wait.

THE AMERICAN HOME IS NOT COMPLETE WITHOUT A PIANO
WE MAKE IT EASY FOR YOU TO GET ONE.

Have a nice piano in you home at once. Don't wait any longer. You know very well that you cannot say that your home is properly furnished unless you have a piano. Every up-to-date home has a piano, both for the fine finish it gives the room and for the great pleasure and entertainment it affords you and your friends. Imagine trying to entertain your friends, who like music and song, without a piano in the house. Be up-to-date. Get a piano. We have all the best makes in our "American Plan." Ask some member of your family to mail coupon.

THE PIANOS OF KRANICH & BACH

IT is well to know that the Kranich & Bach Pianos are manufactured by Kranich & Bach. This statement is made because of the fact that a great many pianos are not manufactured at all by those whose names are associated with them, but are merely "assembled," as it is called. All the various parts of the instrument are purchased in the open market from individual manufacturers of those parts, and the parts are then assembled or put together by the owners of "piano factories," and their names placed upon the completed instrument, which is then called by that name.

There are not more than four or five makes of pianos beside the Kranich & Bach every part of which is actually made by the manufacturers of those pianos in their own factories.

The pianos of Kranich & Bach are actually made, in their entirety, by Kranich & Bach in the Kranich & Bach factories. Kranich & Bach make their own cases, their own actions, keyboards, sounding boards, etc.; in short, they make all the parts. They do not "assemble," they actually produce the instrument and are its makers. Every particle and portion of it is, therefore, emphatically understood and warranted by them. It can readily be seen what differences there must be in the construction of an article, especially when it is an artistic one, under these two distinctly contrary mechanical manipulations.

Instruments that are "assembled" cannot be artistic.

Instruments that are built like the Kranich & Bach Pianos, necessarily abide under an artistic principle. Nearly fifty years of intense application for the purpose of securing the most refined and susceptible tone quality that can emanate from the piano, together with the most rigorous attention to the question of construction in its relation to durability, have made it possible to substantiate the claim that the Kranich & Bach Piano is an artistic creation of the highest order. Chas. S. Norris is Sole Kranich & Bach Agent for this territory and Rhode Island.

REMEMBER—If you are thinking of buying a piano—consider first the reliability of the individual or firm from whom you contemplate purchasing—first determine the reliability and the rest is easy. Mr. Charles S. Norris has been in the piano business for over a quarter of a century. His house is the representative of some of the world's greatest pianos, the Kranich & Bach high grade pianos, and the Autopiano, the best player piano made in the world. Charles S. Norris of 181 Tremont st. no doubt sells more pianos than any other house in New England, and this record is because of his reliability and the reliability of the pianos he handles. Before purchasing any make piano anywhere you should do yourself the justice to see the piano and get the cash and credit price from Charles S. Norris, 181 Tremont St.

CASH BUYERS' OPPORTUNITY

If you have the cash to pay for a piano or player piano we have a very interesting proposition for you. You realize that a cash sale is always a very desirable one for the dealer. At just this time, after the holidays, when business is quiet, a man can get more for his cash than at any other season in the year. We are ready to do business with you, and if you have the cash we will show you a saving on any make piano that will astonish you. If you are considering buying any special make piano or player piano don't make a move till you investigate our proposition. Get our cash price. Remember—no matter what make you want, get our price before buying.

BOSTON STARS AFTER HONORS IN BIG GAMES

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.
(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada.)

The B. A. A. athletes had their last workout today for the National championship meet, which w111 take place in New York tomorrow evening at Madison Square Garden. Every athlete of note in New England will compete in this classic. With the exception of Drew and Cummings, the Harvard hurdler, the team is composed entirely of members of the B. A. A. track team.

John A. Ryder will accompany the team to New York, and his presence will be a real asset to the team as his confidence and coolness is always a help to the athletes. This is the only meet in New York that will have the full strength of the New England athletes entered, and it will give the followers of sport in that city an opportunity to see what the Boston athletes are capable of doing in a championship meeting.

Boston Athletes Confident.

Hub athletes will invade the big city seeking track and field honors with a greater confidence of being returned winners than ever before. As one New York scribe wrote yesterday, "The Boston team has produced the goods up to the present time this season and in the coming showdown at the National championships they appear able to back their championship aspirations."

The team that will invade Gotham from this city will be stronger than ever before and there appears to be no question in the minds of the New York critics about the ability of the local combination to take away a share of the premier honors.

Coach Lawson Robertson of the Irish-American Athletic Club, has announced that Abel Kiviat, the wonderful miler from that club, will not start in the 600-yard race. Robertson will reserve Kiviat for the 1,000-yard event, where he will need all of his speed in order to defeat the numerous cracks entered from the different sections of the country.

New England will be represented in this race by Eugene Marceau, the elongated middle distance runner of the Unitede Club. Marceau is running as fast as any of the New York stars and is liable to upset the well laid plans of the New York athletes.

O'Hara Out to Beat Drew.

As this meet will wind up the indoor season, the different athletes entered will put forth all of their energy.

O'Hara, the Unicorn sprinter who was second to Drew in the New England championships, but whom the officials overlooked in their selection of winners, will attempt to take that wonderful sprinter's measure in the 75-yard dash. O'Hara and High are being sent at the expense of the Hoch Bay Club, while the remainder of the athletes will make the trip on the funds of the New England A. A. U.

Stallings Drills Squad in Practice at Athens

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

ATHENS, Ga., March 5.—Soreness and more of it was the prevailing characteristic of the Boston players today. But with remorse for the past and hope for the future they took the field just the same, and with groans and curses chased the festive grounder and caught the elusive fly. Today and tomorrow will be the worst in the matter of soreness for the players. After that they will begin to feel like fighting cocks and before long will be under the impression that they are world-beaters.

But they are not world-beaters. Stallings realizes it if the players do not. His problem is to get them out of last place and finish as high in the 1913 race as the material turned over to him will warrant.

STALLINGS ALWAYS COACHING PLAYERS.

If in these dispatches at any time considerable praise is accorded a certain player the reader is asked to please remember that it takes nine good men to win a ball game in the big leagues.

Boston "fans" can be assured that Stallings will get the most out of the men he has in hand. Stallings coaches his men all the time. If he sees a fault he calls attention to it at once. Thus he sought to remedy the habit "Rabbit" Maranville has of pulling away from the plate when at bat.

This is a serious fault, and some managers will waste no time with a man who "pulls." McGraw is a manager of this stamp. But McGraw has a championship team to work upon while Stallings must be more patient with his men. He spoke to the "Rabbit" or "Peggy" as the other players call the little Springfield lad, and an improvement was shown at once.

Maranville Is Perfect Fielder.

One of the features of the last practice was the workout of Bill James, the Seattle pitcher, whose home is at Orville, Cal. The Coast States have turned out some fine ball players in recent years, and the chances are that James will be found among their number when he gets here. He is only a "kid" in looks. He is really twenty-two years old, but in spite of his size he doesn't appear old enough to vote.

James Is Showing Speed.

James showed great speed in his workout. Stallings was on top of him all the time, begging imploring and beseeching him to curb himself. Finally he had to take the ball away, though later he allowed the big youngster to go in the box and pitch to the batters. Fred Mitchell, who caught him in the warming-up period, said the youngster had a lot of stuff on the ball.

Paul Strand, a left-hander, who pitched for Spokane last season, and whose name is up in that territory, also had a fine workout. This pitcher looks enough like Rube Marquard in the box to be his twin brother. He is not as tall as the Rube, but he has all the motions of the man who beat the Red Sox two games in the world's series.

Cuban Is in Condition.

Miguel Gonzales, the Cuban catcher, made the side line exercises look easy and natural. He donned the mask and chest protector and big mitt and went behind the box to handle the pitching of Mamie Thomson, Perdue and other pitchers in batting practice. He acted like a veteran, taking the ball without any lost motion and whipping it to second on the line without wasting any time.

Stallings will welcome the Cuban journalist here. Gonzales cannot speak a word of English and the manager has been stymied in making known his orders; but with an interpreter no hand things will be different. It is likely that Stallings will learn a few choice Spanish oaths to have up his sleeve. But by the same token, the chances are that the first thing Gonzales learns in English will be how to swear. Thus Stallings can have a double-barrel cuss gun handy at all time.

Perhaps I have created the impression that the new manager is a profane man, but as a matter of fact, such is not the case. When things are going right Stallings rarely uses a cuss word. But he is known to have a somewhat extended vocabulary of unsanctified words which he knows how to use. Thus far there has been no occasion for a Mississippi River steamboat mate to become jealous of him.

Rariden Still a "Holdout"

Bill Rariden hasn't signed his contract, although Stallings stretched a point and sent him transportation. Bill is thinking the matter over and talking it over, but as yet has reached no decision. If Stallings keeps a stiff upper lip there is reason to believe that Bill will swing himself into line. There are three catchers here, besides Rariden—Gonzales, Mitchell and Devogt. Two more are on the way, Whaling and Drummond Brown. Both are said to be stars.

Bermuda Motor Boat Race for Cup And $1,000 Cash

The Yachtsmen's Club of Philadelphia announces the date of the Philadelphia Bermuda motor boat race for the Gordon Bennett cup and $1,000 in cash for June 7. The total distance is 734 nautical miles.

The race will start from the public pier, Race street, Philadelphia, and finish off St. David's Head, Bermuda. The course is down the Delaware river and bay.

The race is open to all boats not over sixty feet water line nor under thirty-nine feet water line length, which can be equipped with any form of internal combustion engines. The rating will be calculated under the 1913 rules of the American Power Boat Association.

Red Sox Hope to Defeat Pirates in Big Series

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 5.—A tip: Fred Clarke's Pittsburgh Pirates had better be in the best of trim by the middle of March. Otherwise, it is a dogone shame the beating they will receive from the Boston Red Sox. Jean Leland Stahl, commander of the world's champions, is dead stuck on his possessions. He is way too experienced a baseball man to be prophesying that Boston will repeat its 1912 conquest and land both the American League pennant and the world's championship title.

But Stahl cannot but look pleasant and smile when he discusses the present form of his pitchers, the gents who are to bear the brunt of the work in whatever fortune comes Boston's way the coming season.

WOOD READY TO PITCH FULL GAME.

Early in the Winter Stahl wrote his pitchers and asked them as a special favor to begin taking light exercise as early as possible so as to get their whips in readiness for the practice work in the Spa. While referring to this statement today, he said: "The boys must have done as I asked them to do. I am a pretty experienced baseball pilot, but never before in I seen a set of pitchers in anything like as good shape, the earliness of the practice season considered as my youths.

"All of them, veterans as well as rookies, are practically in shape already and you know well as I do that we have not yet got started in our preliminary work.

"As for Joe Wood, who was a day late in reporting, I really believe he could go to the firing line now and pitch a full nine-inning game at top speed."

When yesterday's workout was wound up, Stahl lined up his five young flingers, Ainsworth and Mogridge of Youngstown, Ohio, Watkins, the promising young southpaw from Sharon, Pa., and Martins and Foster, his two recruits from Texas, and had them serve up fairly warm stuff to Messrs. Carrigan, Cady, Nunamaker and Thomas.

Fine Weather at Springs

It was only the second day of the practice season, and little or nothing bordering on the real thing was accomplished at Monday's maiden matinee. Nevertheless, the rookies seemed bent upon showing their manager something, and they succeeded. Then followed a run into the buckstaff, where a scrub in the tub was taken, and the day's workout was over.

The Spa is enjoying the prettiest of weather. The thermometer registered fifty-two degrees at noon Monday. It was sixty-two in the same hour yesterday afternoon, and the mercury remains on the climb today. Stahl stated that the weather today is brighter and warmer than at any time during last Spring's workout.

It is taught but the truth that the Red Sox encountered a lot of rain last March. For that matter, the whole South was rain-soaked, and as Stahl was well satisfied with the condition of his warriors he sent them to the baths. They must have got in their share of the work right here, despite the general dampness of the weather.

Leonard and Brand Missing

The current Spring the weather is absolutely ideal. Hence Stahl is cock sure that the training trip is going to be a huge success. He is grooming his battery boys, particularly his young pitchers, for the nine-game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates, which will have its inaugural Sunday, March 16, providing Sheriff Bob Williams is a good fellow and does not jam the lid down on Sunday bell.

Stahl is taking the series seriously. Rather, he sees some royal good practice ahead for his athletes. As already remarked, he intends giving all his young twirlers every chance to make good the goods is bound to gain regular employment.

Pitchers Leonard and Brand remain numbered among the missing, but must be reported today. As stated yesterday, they evidently came East from Fresno, Cal., to Portland, Me., and Richmond, Va. They are overdue. Ball players were ever peculiar. They know the short cuts across the Plains, and whoever delivers the goods is bound to gain regular employment.

PILGRIMS TO MEET CANADIAN SEVEN

Local hockey "fans" are anticipating another fast and exciting contest when the fast Pilgrim A. A. team crosses sticks with the Frontenacs of Kingston, Ont., at the Boston Arena tomorrow night. The Pilgrims have taken a big jump in the eyes of local supporters of the game since their sensational exhibition against the strong Sherbrooke team last Thursday night. Their rushing the Canadians the Pilgrims tied the score at four-all just before the close of the regular period, and scored the winning goal all within a half minute of the close of the extra period.

WIN FOR ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, March 5.—St. Louis won from Brooklyn, 50 to 42, in the National Billiard League tournament here. The game went to innings.

RILEY'S COLUMN OF SPORT COMMENT

ONCE upon a time—on September 7, 1909, to be exact—Billy Papke, then twenty-two years old, met Stanley Ketchel in the ring at Los Angeles, knocked him out in twelve rounds, became world's middleweight champion and acquired the monicker of "Thunderbolt Bill." In the preceding June Papke had lost to Ketchel at Milwaukee in ten rounds. The following November Ketchel knocked him out in eleven rounds and retained the title, never to lose it again. In July, 1909, Papke lost to Ketchel once more at Colma, Cal., in twenty rounds. But because of his knockout of the mighty Stanley at Los Angeles—the only time any man ever put Ketchel to the floor for the count except when Jack Johnson, outweighing and outreaching him, laid him down in twelve rounds at Colma, October 16, 1909—Papke has claimed the vacant world's middleweight championship off and on in the two years since Ketchel was murdered. Now there are some other pretty good claimants—Billy Klaus and Eddie McGoorty among them—and because the middleweight championship is empty the bout between Papke and Klaus in Paris tonight carries the dignity of a championship battle.

* * *

THE championship itself is not at stake because nobody holds it and nobody has ever fought for it in convincing style since Ketchel departed this world. Papke himself has been discredited in America since Ketchel demonstrated conclusively that that Los Angeles knockout was a defeat of the greater by the lesser star. Since that occasion, in fact, besides losing twice to Ketchel, Papke has lost decisions to Dave Smith and the somewhat aged "Cyclone Johnny" Thompson in Australia, and to Rob Moha, in Boston and Frank Mantell of Providence in Sacramento. These defeats showed Papke as a "has-been," at least if not a "never-was."

* * *

BUT Papke has since gone to Paris, far from the keen vision of American sport writers, and has established himself among the natives as a wonderful fighter, particularly since he beat George Carpentier, the French champion, in 17 rounds at Paris last October. Papke, in fact, has become quite a hero in Paris, where they haven't become so calloused to boxing "fakes" as we have on this side and where the volatile sport followers quickly forget past disappointments upon the production of new coups. In short they live upon the present in France, and Papke is very much present just now.

* * *

THIS Carpentier himself doesn't amount to so much, by all the "dope" that we consider on this side of the pond, but he is a wonder in the eyes of the Boulevardier—in fact, so far as we can recollect, he is the only simon-pure French pugilist who ever jammed in his way seriously into American newspaper headlines. He is a giant and slowly approaches the heavyweight class. He is the only Johnny Crapaud whose record is quoted in the American sporting guides.

* * *

FRANK KLAUS, who meets Papke tonight, also best Carpentier. He was given the decision June 24, 1912, in nineteen rounds at Dieppe, when Carpentier's manager and seconds broke into the ring. So that event gives the Frenchman a title upon Klaus and makes him, in their eyes, a fit antagonist for Billy Papke. In fact, this little is for the middleweight championship of France, which is a tangible title compared with the vague claim the winner may have for the world's championship.

* * *

KLAUS managed to beat nearly everybody he tackled on this side of the water, his only losses being to Jimmy Gardner in Boston in November, 1910, and to Hugo Kelly in the same town a month later. He was never knocked out, but has never showed enough to convince American fight followers that he was of consistent championship calibre.

* * *

BUT these two men will attract much attention tonight because they are about as close to middleweight championship as exist today—so sadly has that once famous class falled to produce in recent years. Klaus is counted upon by the experts to beat Papke because he is younger, tougher and has a clearer record. Papke was a bona fide champion for a short time after he defeated Ketchel, but some of his fights since then have been an astonishingly bad lot, any claim he might make to the title would hardly be taken seriously unless established by a series of decisive victories in polished style over all the possible claimants now in the public eye. Klaus believed that he would beat Papke easily tonight and those interested in pugilism believed likewise. A cablegram announcing that Papke had "come back" would be a great surprise.

* * *

NOBODY on this side of the Atlantic knows just what Papke is like nowadays, and we won't believe the French sport writers on the subject because they never saw enough of the real game to know a fighter by sight any more than do these pugilistic writers in this country who began writing ringside gossip within the past half dozen years. If Papke were the old "Thunderbolt" he would be picked to win. In Paris they are so excited over him that they are offering 2 to 1 that he will beat Klaus. But in this country, where we only know the Papke that left here after his downfall, Klaus is a logical favorite. We must admit, however, that Ketchel is the only man who ever knocked out Papke in seven years of fighting.

* * *

THE winner of tonight's bout will claim the middleweight championship and will forthwith be challenged by Eddie McGoorty, no great shakes himself, but a claimant nevertheless. While Americans will not concede tonight's winner the title, they will, in case the fight results decisively, accept the bout as a starting point upon which to base future championship claims some time in the future. In that respect the battle is important.

DAN SULLIVAN, a Dorchester politician, injected into sporting circles today the following "dope" on why Frank Brandeis is in Wilson's cabinet. If he isn't:

"How could Brandeis settle in Washington? He might mix with Bulger, but never with Wilson."

All the comment we can make is that they pronounce Brandeis that way in and about the ringside.

UNICORN CLUB IS TO HOLD BILLIARD AND POOL TITLE PLAY

Beginning one week from today the ace experts of the Boston Athletic Association will compete in the pool and billiard championships. Chairman Charles H. Carter announces that the interest is keener than ever, and with a good entry list the competition is sure to result in some exciting periods.

The drawings:

Billiard championship—A. J. Pass vs. W. H. Whiting, jr.; A. Barnes vs. C. Gilday; F. E. Abbott vs. J. Lanigan, jr.; J. M. Kenduchen vs. Bye.

Pool championship—George Osborne vs. A. Hodgdon, winner plays H. E. Foster; F. D. Lawrence vs. J. Brewer, winner plays E. G. Townsend; G. J. Barnum vs. R. A. Richards, winner plays J. Hanlon; J. M. Kenduchen vs. H. E. Fors, winner plays W. G. Wright.

LACROSSE PRACTICE IS HELD AT NIGHT

The Harvard lacrosse team has introduced an innovation in its practice this season in the form of night practice. In order to get ready for some unusually early games, it has been necessary to start early in the cage in February in order to get the men well up in the preliminaries. The veterans from last year's team who have returned to college are: Captain S. S. Simmons, '13, of South Boston; S. B. Lincoln, '13; J. P. Perinall, '13; W. J. McKenzie, '13; J. W. White, '13; F. E. Abbe, '13; and R. Bentley, '13.

The circulation of the AMERICA is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 150,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

ARLINGTON-MELROSE MAY BATTLE IN ANOTHER GAME

As yet nothing has been done in the matter of bringing the Melrose High and Arlington High hockey teams together in a game that will once and for all time decide the championship of the north. The teams are still dickering and talking and doing but little. The game ended in a tie.

It is possible the managers of the two teams will get together within a few days and talk the matter over. The game may be played any evening during the first part of next week. The public is anxious for the two teams to come together, as much interest is being displayed in school hockey, and especially in this game, which resulted so unsatisfactorily.

STAR SOMERVILLE BOWLERS IN ROLLOFF

Manager Fred Conley of the Ball Square Alleys, West Somerville, has started a big rolloff at his alleys and all the best bowlers of Somerville are entered. Cash prizes are offered for the best three consecutive strings and the competition is very keen. The eliminations will continue till March 15, and twenty men will enter the final round, to be rolled on Wednesday, March 19. The rolling in the preliminary strings so far has been high and it requires strings well over 300 to qualify.

M'FARLAND AND BRITTON CLASH IN GREAT BOUT

By ED W. SMITH.

On Friday evening the two Chicagrishmen of whom we have written so often—Packey McFarland and Jack Britton—are to settle a ring feud of three years' standing in Madison Square Garden, provided ten rounds is sufficient time to prove conclusive superiority.

* * *

Chicago lovers of the glove sport are stirred up more over the McFarland-Britton affair than over the clash of Papke and Klaus, though Packey and Jack are not fighting for anything in the way of a championship and the other fellows are. But Packey is from the part of town that owns the White Sox, and Jack long has been a familiar figure around the corner of Clark and Division on the North Side.

New York fans are buying tickets by the bushel and every inch in Madison Square Garden, except the some twenty-four feet square of space devoted to the boys who will be in the spotlight with the mitts, will be occupied Friday night.

Packey and Britton are enemies in every sense of the word. Their frauds are enemies and if there ever was a "blood" fight, this will be that same thing.

McFarland and Packey boxed a draw in Memphis in January, 1910. The result was a big surprise. Packey was a top-liner then, Britton a beginner. They have not met since. In the meantime, Packey has continued to punch holes in his foes all over the country. Britton has been doing just about as well for the past year and when you talk now to any wise ring bird who has seen both extended to the limit, he will say: "Packey is great. But so is Britton. I really don't know."

Britton has been out-boxed, the record books show, Packey never has. Packey is the younger, though he was a star first. We believe Packey has lived a cleaner life. Each has cleverness to spare, but Packey is probably the speedier with his footwork.

Both can hit, and hit hard. That goes for Packey when he has to hit to keep from taking a licking—and Britton certainly is good enough to make Packey put all he has behind his punches, regardless of his hands. Both are in the best of shape, and there you are.

We have never seen McFarland's equal as a ten-round fighter. He can go that route at a dizzy pace and a fight is mastery fight all the way. Britton will have to be better than he ever was before to win from the South Side whirlwind.

M'DONOUGH AND GALLANT FIGHT 12-ROUND DRAW

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 8.—More than 2,200 boxing "fans" crowded the Mechanics Hall arena and saw two exceptionally fine bouts, both of which resulted in draws. In the feature bout of 12 rounds "Young" McDonough of Manchester and Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea, Mass., gave a fine exhibition, but only of boxing but of hard hitting.

McDonough obtained an early lead but it was counters aured in the closing rounds by Gallant, who in the ninth, tenth and seventh rounds administered severe punishment. In the second round McDonough caught Gallant over the right eye and caused a severe cut, and in the seventh round Gallant retaliated by nearly closing McDonough's eye. The decision of a draw was merited.

Young Lafore of this city was the opponent of Tommy Flanagan of New Bedford, Mass., in the semi-finals. It was announced before the mach started that it was a no-decision affair, as Flanagan had failed to make weight. He weighed in at 120 pounds while Lafore was under 118.

Flanagan's superior weight and reach were offset by Lafore's quickness. He was after his man most of the time but he had a decided lead in the first seven rounds. After the 7 rounds were fought to settle advantage and was given a draw.

Young Heid scored a long decision over Young Lavoie in a six-round bout. Billy Walker refereed the preliminary and Joe Thomas the two feature bouts.

Strong Schedule Is Arranged for Brown Football Warriors

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 8.—Manager Goodspeed has announced the Brown football schedule for the season 1913. Owing to the Harvard date being changed somewhat late, the schedule had to be slightly altered. Wesleyan, Lafayette and Norwich have been dropped from the schedule while Ursinus and Springfield Y. M. C. A. Training School have been taken on for the first time.

Tufts again returns to the schedule after a year's absence. Brown has Dartmouth's date on Harvard's schedule, the game coming three weeks later than the usual one. Thus the annual game with Yale comes two weeks before the Harvard game. Brown plays the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, making three games away from Providence during the season.

Following is the complete schedule:

September 27, Colby at Providence; October 4, Rhode Island State at Providence; October 11, Dartmouth at Hanover; October 18, Colgate at Providence; October 25, Springfield Y. M. C. A. Training School at Providence; November 1, Amherst at Providence; November 8, Harvard at Cambridge; November 15, Harvard at Cambridge; November 22, Tufts at Providence; November 27, Carlisle at Providence.

BROOKLYN READY FOR TRAINING IN SOUTH

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 8.—Captain Daubert and the Brooklyn baseball players are here ready to start practice in addition to Daubert the following players are in the party: Hummell, Mowrey, Coulson, Kirkpatrick, Erwin, Talaghan, Hanrahan and Fischer. Manager Dahlen and Pitchers Rucker, Allen and Regan are expected in on any train from Hot Springs. Other players who left direct from their homes are also due at any hour.

AMMIDON IS WINNER IN CLOSE MATCH

The three-cushion billiard game at the White Bear billiard parlor last night between Ammidon and Bates was won by the former by the score of 50 points to 44. Intricate shots were executed by both players, which kept the spectators interested during the entire game. Carroll will play Kuhn tonight.

KLAUS AND PAPKE IN NEAR TITLE BOUT

U. S. STARS IN BATTLE IN PARIS TONIGHT

BOUTS TONIGHT

Frank Klaus vs. Billy Papke, Paris.

Jack Leon vs. Jess Willard, Fort Wayne.

Battling Nelson vs. Frank Whitney, Atlanta.

Frankie Conly vs. Ed O'Keefe, New Orleans.

By JACK CONWAY.

FRANK KLAUS, the rugged middleweight from Pittsburgh, and Billy Papke, the young man who put Spring Valley, Ill., on the map, are scheduled to clash in a twenty-round battle in Paris tonight. The winner of the tussle will undoubtedly lay claim to the middleweight championship of the world.

The contest has aroused an immense amount of enthusiasm throughout Europe, and especially in France, and a capacity house is sure to watch the two German-American champions struggle for victory.

Klaus rules a big favorite in this country, but Papke has thousands of adherents on the other side of the big pond. The French look for the latter contender Billy to wonder, as he was the first middleweight to dispose of George Carpentier, the self-styled French idol.

Billy, however, is no longer a "headliner" in this country, and nobody realizes this fact any better than the fighter himself. He can get five times as much money for a bout in France as he can for one in the city of New York, where famous purses are being given to the leading ring men.

Several years ago Papke was one of the most feared middleweights in the world. He was a typical slugger and possessed a punishment punch, as he proved when he sent the unfortunate Stanley Ketchell to the mat for the full count at Los Angeles on September 7, 1908. Billy was later in turn knocked out by the "Assassin." He has covered a lot of hard knocks during his career in the squared circle, and this has tended to slow him up.

Papke, however, has "come back" to a certain extent during the past year and has engaged in some good bouts on the other side of the Atlantic. If Billy is half as good today as he was when he bombed Ketchell he should make things interesting for Klaus.

Klaus is well known to New England boxing fans. He appeared at the Armory A. A. on numerous occasions. In fact it was right here in Boston where Klaus first attracted national attention. He fought Jimmy Gardner, Lee Hook, Hugo Kelly, Joe Fagin, Sullivan Sparkman, Jack Murdock and Tommy Saul all at the old Tremont street arena.

The Pittsburgh man is not a knockout boxer. He relies upon his great strength and ability to give and take punishment in order to win his ring battles. He is a sweet puncher and if he lands many hard wallops on Papke's jaw this evening the latter may be forced to go a quick back two step.

Stillman Wins Two Races in Big Dartmouth Meet

HANOVER, N. H., March 8.—Dartmouth held its first indoor meet here in Alumni Gymnasium, and Coach Hillman was satisfied from the results that he would be able to turn out much promising material before the regular spring season begins. Stillman, '16, was the individual star of the meet, winning the 60-yard dash and the 300-yard run. Brady, '16, formerly of Boston Latin, won the hurdles in fast time. Smith, '14, put the 12 pound shot 42 feet, capturing the event. Hodgson, '14, and Moxon, '15, were winners in the 600-yard run and high jump, respectively.

Other officers elected were George A. Gove, vice-commodore; N. F. Freeman, secretary; George W. Verdi, treasurer; directors, B. A. Ward, Joseph F. Tree, Thomas J. Donovan, Charles W. Rogers and Washburn Weston.

Mike Thomas to Meet Donovan in Ten-String Match

Mike Thomas of the Park Outing Club has covered Peter Donovan's forfeit of $25. The men will meet in a ten string match at the New Boston alleys on April 1.

The remarkable score of 170 put up by Fred Williams has acted as an incentive to some of the Greater Boston bowlers as can be judged by the fine string rolled by Joe Doherty at the Mattapan Square alleys on Monday. Doherty bit for 163 against the candles, scoring as follows in each box: 28, 20, 13, 19, 18, 13, 7, 18, 9, 13—163.

A Schraft rooter writes: "Kindly inform me if Gordon Rebello and Keal of the Bicknell and Fuller bowling team have joined the "Down and Out Club." If not why don't they accept the Schraft challenge issued through the AMERICAN.

Billy Bennett is leading his team in the City Hall League. Murphy and Patterson of School are rolling a strong game.

The Samuel Ward team of the Stationers' League has a postponed match to roll off next Thursday with the McAdams quintet, and should they lose Adams, Curbhaus and Foster will have a chance to regain the lead which they lost last Thursday.

The third quarter of the City League bowling season will come to a close with tonight's matches. Interest centers in the fight for first position, with Cudahy and Halsted as the contenders. The former team is leading by a scant point. Tonight, however, Bill Beatty's men will have to contend with two disadvantages. First, they will have their hands full with McCarthy, and secondly they will bowl away from home.

WADSWORTH IN SECOND MATCH WITH HENDRIE

C. Desmond "Dezzie" Wadsworth and Ernest Hendrie will clash in the second of their series of athletic contests to determine which is the better athlete at the B. A. A. today. The second event down on the program is a fencing match. It is likely that one or two running races and throwing a basketball will be the next numbers of the competition.

The first event took place yesterday afternoon when Wadsworth was returned the victor in a squash racquet match to the tune of 15-12, 13-16, 15-11. There was quite a gallery on hand to witness the first event of the novelty program which the two contestants had chosen.

Both showed up well. The opening game went to Wadsworth, while the second was set at three by Hendrie, which he won, causing the rubber game to be played, in which the better condition of Wadsworth told.

Hunting a Husband

By VIRGINIA TEEHUNE VAN DE WATER

The widow is embarrassed by her young son's announcement that he likes Maynard better than the doctor; Jack also hints at the possibility of his mother marrying Maynard.

BEATRICE MINOR and Dr. Haynes had been chatting for a half-hour when the sound of childish voices under the window made the physician pause and listen.

"Do you hear the children?" he asked, his face lighting up eagerly. "If so, won't you call them in?"

"Certainly I will," said the mother. "They are just coming for their supper, anyhow. Jack dear! You and Jean come in and see Dr. Haynes!"

The little boy and girl appeared at once, their hair dishevelled, their faces and hands dirty.

"Oh, darlings!" exclaimed Beatrice, "how did you ever get yourselves so mussy and dusty after Mary had dressed you for the afternoon.

"Why, we just ran some races in the road," replied the boy, "and played we were automobiles. Jean was Dr. Haynes' car and I was Mr. Maynard's car."

The mother and the physician laughed, but the woman looked embarrassed.

"Who beat?" asked Dr. Haynes with amusement.

"Mr. Maynard's car did, of course," said Jack. "I was his car, and Jean was your car."

A Loyal Youngster

Tears, always near the surface with the little girl, showed now in her great blue eyes.

"Dat's 'cause your legs is stronger'n mine!" she protested. "Anyway I like Dr. Haynes' car best, and I like him best, too!"

The physician laughed happily as he lifted the child to his lap and kissed her.

"Bully for you!" he exclaimed. "That's just what I would expect from my own little friend! She is loyal through and through."

Jack looked a bit disconcerted. "I didn't mean," he tried to explain, "that your car is not a pretty good one, but you can see for yourself that it isn't as handsome as Mr. Maynard's car is, and"——

His mother interrupted him in a firm voice in which the child heard the well-known note of authority.

"It is foolish to compare the two machines, Jack," she said. "Mr. Maynard's automobile is a great touring car, while Dr. Haynes' is a light machine such as a physician needs to make his calls in. You can compare the two no more than you could compare a great draught horse and a dainty little Shetland pony."

Jean's eyes widened, and she caught her breath. "Mother, I like ponies better'n big horses, anyway," she remarked. "Muvver, won't I some day have a Shetland pony for my self?"

The mother smiled, relieved at the diversion. "Perhaps," she assented, "when mother's ship comes in."

"What ship?" asked the child in perplexity.

"Oh," laughed Beatrice. "I mean when I get enough money to buy such things as ponies for my two kiddies."

Jack stood still in the middle of the room, hands in pockets, head bent as in meditation. Then he looked his mother squarely in the eyes.

Her Emabarrassment.

"I suppose," he said bluntly, "that if you was to marry Mr. Paul Maynard you would have enough money to buy ponies with, wouldn't you?"

"Jack!" exclaimed the confused woman while a crimson glow flooded her face and neck. "You do not know what nonsense you are talking! Go at once to Mary and let her wash you and give you your supper. And, Jean, darling, you run along, too."

But Jack wished to make his peace before leaving. "Mother," he pleaded, "I didn't mean to say anything naughty. I only thought that Mr. Maynard wanted to marry you 'cause he comes here so often and sends you such nice fruit, and takes you out in his car and"——

He got no further, for his mother laid her hand decidedly upon his arm.

"My son," she said, "I told you to go out to Mary. You heard and you did not obey. Do not make it necessary for me to punish you."

Without a word the abashed child turned and left the room. Jean, looking timidly at the mother's stern face, slid down from the doctor's knee and started after her brother. But the widow stooped suddenly and put her arms around the little girl.

"Oh, Jean, darling, you are such a comfort!" she exclaimed, straining the tiny form to her breast. "Go and have your face washed, baby mine; then eat a good supper and go to bed."

"I suppose," she remarked as the child left the room, "that it is time for me to get myself ready to go down to Helen's. If you will excuse me I will get my coat and scarf."

Dr. Haynes glanced at his watch. "There is no hurry," he said. "It still lacks a half-hour to Mrs. Robbins' dinner time. Sit down for a few minutes and let me talk to you."

The Physician's Talk

Beatrice sank again into the wicker chair in which she had been seated when the children came in.

"I have been wondering," said the man gravely, "just why you do not have the children dine with you in the evenings when you are at home. Do they annoy you?"

"Of course not!" declared the mother. "But I think it is better for them to be kept in the nursery as long as they are young and have their light supper earlier than I have my dinner. Surely, as a physician you approve of that?"

"I do," he assented, "but I do not see why, since you are often all alone, you do not take supper with them on such occasions. It would make them happier, wouldn't it?"

"Perhaps it would," said the mother. "But I believe in treating children as if they were children."

"Well," said the physician, "if I had such children as yours I would want my wife to rule them entirely by love, and to talk frankly with them of her affairs. But perhaps I have old-fashioned ideas."

The woman looked annoyed. "I have done what I considered my duty," she said rather stiffly. "And I think you must admit that the results have been pretty good. I suppose you think that I was too severe just now upon Jack, but I cannot allow him to talk about matters of which he knows nothing, and which are, moreover, entirely true. Little people have lively imaginations and exaggerate often."

Dr. Haynes looked at her curiously. "Do you mean," he said slowly, "that Jack was exaggerating when he stated that he did of—of—Maynard?"

Her eyes fell before his keen gaze. "I do," she murmured. "Children do not understand such matters, and make mistakes."

"And so do grown men," he affirmed, "and this is one of the cases in which I want to make an exception. I wish I could be sure," he added, while a whimsical smile played about the corners of his mouth, "that you could say truthfully just what Jean said a while ago."

"What Jean said?" asked the woman, puzzled for the moment.

"Yes," he insisted. "When Maynard was spoken of, she said that she 'liked Dr. Haynes best.'"

"Well," said the widow impetuously, "if that's all you want to hear, I can say that too. For"—with an arch look—"if you insist upon my comparing the two men, I can say, as well as Jean, that 'I like Dr. Haynes best!'"

And, before the man could reply, she had hurried from the room to get her wraps preparatory to going to Mrs. Robbins' to dinner.

FRECKLE-FACE

February and March Bring Out Unsightly Spots—How to Remove Easily.

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of othine, double strength, from any of the Riker-Jaynes Drug stores and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds in February and March have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more othine is sold in these months. Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

The Invitation to Pneumonia

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

THE sun is brightly shining; 'tis almost like June;
I'm going out—what shall I wear?
Gray straw and gourd trimming?
Or cerise, with rather chilly—I'll need my sable coat.
No, not that waist—the chiffon blouse comes higher at my throat.
Of course my pongee—do you suppose I'd wear those old high shoes?
And gray silk stockings—find me now the thinnest you can choose.
My costume lacks to be complete my veil of shadow lace—
I simply would not dare to risk the wind a-blowing on my face.
I'm always most particular in Winter what I wear,
And yet I take such awful colds in spite of all my care.

How They Danced in Biblical Times

Sketches by Michelson, Story by Margaret Hubbard Ayer

Judith, one of the dancers mentioned in the Bible

Salome, who danced before Herod for the head of John the Baptist

Miriam the Prophetess, dancing in triumph after the crossing of the Red Sea

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer

DANCING is one of the oldest of the arts.

Three thousand years before Christ the Egyptians made pictures of their dancers on the temple walls, and these rude scrawls show us what kind of dances they enjoyed.

The oldest, Egyptian dances were of astronomical significance and were intended to describe the sun as a central figure, with the stars dancing around.

The Egyptian dances of a slightly later period show more "art," as we call it. Here the dancers, men or women, stood on one leg performing a series of arm movements. The couples faced each other, as they do at present, but they did not touch one another, and the dance was a kind of balancing act, such as we still have in the ballet of today.

Finally the dance became more joyous and less difficult to perform, and the Egyptian priests forbade the upper classes to dance, because they were already sufficiently pleasure loving and frivolous. But everybody did it just the same, and Cleopatra was a fine dancer and used her art to charm Julius Caesar himself.

The Children of Israel learned to dance from the Egyptians, and the first time dancing is mentioned in the Bible is after the Crossing of the Red Sea, when Miriam, the Prophetess and the sister of Aaron, took a timbrel in her hand and sang and danced in triumph with the other women.

The people also danced about the golden calf, and after that there is frequent mention of dancing in the Old Testament.

Acrobatic dancers had also appeared in Egypt before the Israelites left, and they probably carried the knowledge of this art back with them. These acrobatic dancers were contortionists and walked on their hands with their bodies bent far back.

The ordinary dance of religious significance generally expressed joy and thanksgiving and was performed to the accompaniment of cymbals or timbrels, and consisted of simple steps and figures, performed to the sound of trumpets and harps.

It was slow or quick according to its significance, and the steps were a walk, short running step, or a leap. The performance endeavored to exhibit a great variety of arm movements.

The dance of Salome for the head of John the Baptist has attracted artists, playwrights and dancers because of its dramatic possibilities and the master tragedy behind. Every one has a definite idea of the strange beauty, the sensuous fascination of that dance. But if the men who made the closest study of Oriental costumes is to be believed, Tissot, the painter, is right, and the dance for which Herod sacrificed the Saint was an acrobatic performance. Salome did not dance in the sinuous veils, waving them before the dazzled king, as she has been shown on all the stages of the world. She danced on her hands, and it was her skill in the performance of that trick which pleased the king.

Married Life the Third Year

Charity Bazaar and Tableaux —For the— Benefit of the Sunlight Day Nursery. Grand Ball Room of Blank Hotel. Tickets.....$2.50

WITH a flush of annoyance, Helen put the tickets back into the envelope. To begin the day with a headache and a feeling of general depression, and then to find only bills and appeals for charity in the morning mail, was not conducive to amiability.

The only charities to which Helen ever felt she could afford to contribute were the societies for the humane treatment of animals and a home for aged horses. Her sympathies went out most generously to the helplessness of animals.

The thought of attending the bazaar did not occur to her, for she knew Warren would not go, and she would not go in the evening without him. So she would have promptly returned these tickets had not Mrs. Caldwell, one of the patronesses, enclosed with them her card.

Helen had met Mrs. Caldwell only a few times, and felt she was presuming on their slight acquaintance in enclosing her card in this way. It was as though she was trying to make it an obligation for her to keep and pay for the tickets. And Helen resented this trying to capitalise a social acquaintance.

A Snobbish Desire

Yet she had a secret desire to retain Mrs. Caldwell's good opinion. If she had honestly analyzed this desire, she would have found it a snobbish one, for Mrs. Caldwell was a woman of wealth and of unquestioned prominence in public affairs.

So it was not the need of the Sunlight Day Nursery or the good her five dollars might do, that caused Helen to hesitate over the tickets. It was wholly a question of what Mrs. Caldwell might think.

While having no particular social ambitions, Helen was feminine enough to want to stand well in the opinion of a woman of such prominence. And would the favorable impression Mrs. Caldwell might have when she received Helen's remittance be worth the five dollars? To put it crudely, Helen felt she could spend her money for something that would be worth more than Mrs. Caldwell's note of thanks.

However, she did not return the tickets that morning. She would wait and ask Warren's advice. He knew both Mr. and Mrs. Caldwell, and he might think it policy to buy the tickets.

"About the only time Helen had to talk things over with Warren was at dinner, for if he did not go out afterward, he was buried in the newspapers and hated to be "bothered."

"Mrs. Caldwell sent me some tickets for a charity bazaar—some day nursery in which she's interested," Helen announced that evening at the table. "It's next Wednesday—would you care to go?"

"Not on your life."

"But, dear, she enclosed her personal card with the tickets—and they're five dollars, two-fifty apiece."

"Well, what of it?" helping himself to the creamed cauliflower.

"I hardly know what to do—whether to keep the tickets or not. You see, she sent her CARD with them."

"What's that got to do with it?"

"Why everything. Don't you see—it's almost a personal appeal?"

"Personal fiddlesticks! The question is—do you want to give five dollars to the day nursery or not?"

"No, I don't," admitted Helen honestly.

"Well, you're not snobbish enough to give it because that woman sent her card, are you? It's a piece of blamed presumption on her part, not knowing you better. I'll wager she doesn't care a hang about the nursery, but wants to see her name as a patroness. They're some pretty good names here," reading the list, "much better than Mrs. Caldwell's, and the lower your social position the more coin you're expected to bring in. Guess that explains her card. You fire those tickets back."

"But you know she's a great friend of the Dawsons," demurred Helen.

"Great Scott! haven't you independence enough to spend your money the way you want to? If you want to give $5 to the day nursery—give it. But, for heaven's sake, don't be a little snob because of what Mrs. Caldwell or Mrs. Dawson or anybody else may think. That's a FINE spirit for dispensing charity."

Helen flushed. She knew that Warren was right. If she bought the tickets it should be because she wanted to help the cause, and not to court Mrs. Caldwell's good opinion.

Immediately after dinner she sat down at her desk, determined to return the tickets. When she had addressed the envelope she addressed another to her tailor. His bill, which had just come, lay on the blotter before her; it was for $10 for relining and altering her last year's coat.

Helen had now a small bank account of her own, as Warren had decided it was better to give her, at the beginning of each month, a stated sum for her personal and household expenses.

So now she drew a check for $10 to I. Friedberg, the tailor, and wrote a prim little business note: "Enclosed find check for $10, the amount of your bill."

"Have you any stamps, dear?"

The Notes Mixed

Without looking up from his paper, Warren dug out some stamps from his vest pocket. Helen sealed and stamped the envelopes and took them out to the mail chute in the hall.

It was two mornings later that Maggie brought in the mail at breakfast. Usually the hall boy did not get it sorted and delivered to their apartment until after Warren had left, but this morning they had breakfast a little late.

There were three letters for Helen. The first, although in a plain envelope and cleverly addressed by hand, was only an advertisement of a rug cleaning company. The next was from her tailor—the receipted bill. She laid it aside unopened. The third was a heavy cream envelope, addressed in a large "fashionable" hand. Helen tore it open wonderingly.

Dear Mrs. Curtis:

Many thanks for your very generous donation. I regret so much you cannot attend, but it was very thoughtful of you to return the tickets that we may sell them again.

Evidently you were making out other checks at the time, and you wrote in the wrong name on the one you sent us. So I am returning it for correction. I have already had the secretary enter your name for this amount, as we wish to make as good a showing as possible before our business meeting next week.

At my next afternoon at home, the last Wednesday of the month, I am having a recital by a young Russian pianist of exceptional talent. I feel sure you would enjoy hearing him, and am sending you a card in the hope that you will come.

Very sincerely,
HARRIET E. CALDWELL

The Tailor's Bill

With a little gasp, Helen stopped to pick up the check that had fluttered to the floor. It was her check for ten dollars, made out to I. Friedberg, the tailor.

She tore open his envelope, which she had thought contained the receipted bill, and a note.

Dear Madam:

Your letter of the 6th received, but you failed to enclose the check. I am returning the bill.

Respectfully,
I. FRIEDBERG.

"What's wrong?" demanded Warren, holding out his coffee cup, which Helen with her eyes riveted on the letters, was too dazed to see.

"Oh, what DO you think? I put that check in the wrong envelope!"

"What check?" reaching over and pouring the coffee himself.

"The tailor's check. Oh, how could I have sent it to them?"

"To who? If you'll be a little more intelligible"——

"To the Sunlight Day Nursery. Here's Mrs. Caldwell's letter of thanks, saying they've already credited my name with that amount. Read it," handing him the letter. 'And here's the tailor's note. Oh, how COULD I have done such a thing?"

For a moment Warren frowned over the two letters, then threw them down with a contemptuous shrug.

"You're a FINE business woman! But that old girl's shrewd, all right. I'm not so sure she thought that check was meant for her, but she nailed you while she could—and threw in the recital as a sop. You'll have to cough up that other ten. Serves you right. Anybody who can't handle money better than that ought to lose some of it."

"But WILL I have to send the check?"

bawalled Helen. "Couldn't I explain it was a mistake?"

"Suppose you could, but I think you'd feel pretty cheap. If you're any kind of a sport you'll ante up now. She's got you there, all right."

QUITE CORRECT

AT a certain meeting in an out-of-the-way town, the only attendants were one little chairman and a citizen of very large stature. The chairman had some reasons to pass which began by representing that they were presented to a "large and respectable" gathering of voters.

"Hold on," cried the other man, "we can't pass that, for it ain't true. It ain't a large and respectable meeting! There's only two of us."

"You keep still," commanded the wily chairman, "it's all right, for you are large and I am respectable. You just keep still."

So the resolution was passed without further demur.

NO USE FOR HIM

"I've got you down for a couple of tickets. We're getting up a raffle for a poor man of our neighborhood."

"None for me, thank you. I wouldn't know what to do with a poor man if I was him."

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take one pint of granulated sugar, add ½ pint of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have a good cough syrup as many could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made, for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized by thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

BOSTON 'VOTES' PARADER TELLS OF OUTRAGES

Boston women suffragists returning from Washington declare that a protest will be made to the authorities at Washington, demanding the dismissal of all those responsible for the outrages inflicted upon the parading women on March 3.

Women struck in the face and spat upon; a grey-haired woman leading a college section knocked down twice, jeers and mocking laughter were a few of the outrages during the parade, as the story is related by Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald of Greenwood avenue, Jamaica Plain. Mrs. Fitzgerald was in the leading national division.

Mrs. Susan Fitzgerald, and Mrs. G. J. White of No. 530 Centre street, Jamaica Plain were the first to reach the Hub from Washington. Their first note of protest will be followed by action upon the arrival of the remaining State suffragists today and later.

As soon as the women are all back a meeting will be held, according to Mrs. Fitzgerald, at which resolutions will be sent to every Bay State member of Congress, demanding a Congressional investigation and the punishment of those responsible.

In speaking of her experiences Mrs. Fitzgerald says:

What Mrs. Fitzgerald Says.

Everyone interested in suffrage cause is urged to send an individual protest to his or her congressman. We want the Massachusetts representatives in Washington to be flooded with protests.

We want those responsible for the insults to our women severely punished. The trouble took place within the Federal territory and for that reason Congress must act.

We want the immediate dismissal of Major Sylvester, chief of police, and we wish to protest particularly against the lack of action on the part of our assistant secretary of war, a Massachusetts man, General Oliver who refused to supply us with a military escort.

As soon as the women are all back there will be a mass meeting at which joint resolutions will be formally drawn up and a copy sent to all the Massachusetts members of Congress, asking that a thorough investigation be instituted.

The commissioners of the district will also be appealed to to help make restitution for the wrong done the parades.

During the parade about thirty members of Congress, including, I believe, Congressman Butler Ames, were in the line with us, and there was no angrier set of men in Washington than they when the disgraceful scenes along the line occurred.

We lay the blame largely upon Major Sylvester, who was warned over and over again that strong police protection would be needed, but these men, instead of trying to keep people out of the line of march, laughed and sided with the crowd when they pushed off the sidewalks into the street.

There was no possible excuse for the way the police laughed and cheered when the women were being insulted. It was certainly a refreshing sight to witness how our women kept their place and coolly and bravely marched without faltering when they were being hooted and insulted at every step.

Stimson Refused Aid.

They couldn't have proven their pluck better, and I doubt if there was a single one but would have gone over the march again if she had been called upon to do so.

We tried to get Secretary of War Stimson to help us, but he is a violent "anti-suffragist." The suits did everything to rouse opposition and antagonism toward us.

The streets were lined with the toughest crowd of men and women, a great many of them drunk. Once when the line halted, a "funny" man kept punching the horse a girl was riding. She stood it as long as she could and then struck him across the face. He subsided at once.

$3,000 FIRE DAMAGE IN LYNN THEATRE

Fire at the Theatre Comique, No. 93-95 Munroe street, Lynn, early today, caused a loss of $3,000. The flames were discovered in the Harley building.

PSALMS AGAIN FAVORED BY WILSON OATH

WASHINGTON, March 5.—When Woodrow Wilson took the oath of office he pledged his fealty to the country by kissing a page of the Bible opened at random, and in doing so his lips brushed the verses beginning:

"And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth."

These six verses from the 119th Psalm, beginning with the forty-third verse, are the twelfth verse of the ninety-first Psalm. President Hayes, kissing the twelfth verse of the 118th Psalm, touched these words: "They compassed him about like bees, they are quenched as the fire of thorns, for in the name of the Lord I will destroy them."

Again, President Arthur kissed the 31st Psalm, Verses 1, 2, and 3: "In Thee, O Lord, do I put my trust; let me never be ashamed: deliver me in Thy righteousness. Bow down Thine ear to me; deliver me speedily; be Thou my strong rock, for an house of defense to save me."

President Cleveland on his first inauguration day kissed a verse of the Psalms. This is the fifth verse of the 112th, reads thus: "A good man sheweth favor and lendeth, he will guide his affairs with discretion."

After him came Benjamin Harrison, who also kissed one of the Psalms. This time it was the first verse of the 121st: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the Lills, from whence cometh my help."

Cleveland Picked Psalms Again.

Then came Cleveland again, and this time, too, he kissed another verse from the same Book of Scripture. This was the twelfth verse of the ninety-first Psalm: "They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

Since the second inauguration of Cleveland no President has kissed verses in the Psalms until President Wilson.

The Bible which President Wilson used was the one on which he took the oath when he was made Governor of New Jersey.

After the ceremony the verses kissed are marked, and the book will be taken to the White House by Mrs. F. D. McKenney, daughter-in-law of Mr. McKenney, and presented to the "first lady of the land."

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Irregularity prevailed in stock markets when trading began. Boston opened quiet, and in New York prices started fractionally lower. In London a more cheerful sentiment prevailed, but the situation on the Continent was restrictive. It was cabled: "The enormous increases in military expenditures by Continental nations overshadowed Bourses."

It is said that European buying of American stocks is likely to be restricted until President Wilson sends a message to the extra session of Congress called for April 1. There is much anxiety also as to how Germany will get through her settlement period at that time.

Prices had a sagging tendency in Boston around the opening and transactions were small. There was little doing in coppers and the market was dull. By the end of the first hour Granby was 1⅛ higher and Maydower, Shannon and Calumet & Arizona were among issues which had made small gains. A number of leading local coppers were unchanged.

In New York at that time prices were ranging higher. Steel was up ⅜, Reading 1, Met. Met. pf. ¾, Consolidated Gas ⅝, American Can 1⅜ and Union Pacific half a point.

Early Trading in New York.

There does not appear to be any general trend to the New York market in early trading and price movements seemed to be determined by influences relating only to stocks affected, it was covering by shorts which gave Reading firmness. Copper issues ranged a little higher. Chicago, which has recently been adversely affected because no placed on the dividend list, was in better demand and advanced. It is believed that the greater demand for the existing for the metal will enable the company to sell the copper it is holding.

At the opening the several specialties showed the greatest activity. Biscuit and Myers advanced 3 points within half an hour. Republic Iron & Steel preferred was weak declining 1¾. General Electric rose 1⅝. The undertone was dull but prevailed.

B. R. T. yielded ½ at the start, but later recovered. Amalgamated was up ⅛, and other gains were: Utah Copper, ⅜; Pennsylvania, ⅛; Atchison, ⅞; American Coal Products, ⅝, and American Smelting, ¼. Canadian Pacific sold off 1⅜, and other declines were: Steel common, ⅛; Steel preferred, ⅛; Lehigh Valley, ¼, and Union Pacific, ⅜. The curb was dull.

Americans in London were quiet and sagging over New York parity.

Latest Copper Metal Reports.

One statement regarding copper metal quotations reads: "It was the understanding in the trade that Phelps Dodge & Co. were the leaders in moving up prices abroad, having named 13 cents in London late Monday afternoon. In this they were soon followed by the Amalgamated, Guggenheim and other agencies."

Shannon copper output for February was 1,152,000 pounds, or 80,000 less than in January. Two hundred and fifty ounces of gold and 8,700 ounces of silver were also mined.

In February Franklin produced 208,000 pounds of mineral, or 70,000 pounds less than in January.

President Thayer of the Anaconda Copper Company says:

"For several months the production of the company's mines has been considerably below normal. In January the company turned out roughly 21,000,000 pounds of copper. In February, though the production was somewhat higher, being nineteen million pounds, it was nowhere near normal. The falling off during the twenty-odd days consumed in several months operations at the company's mines has been greatly handicapped owing to the severe Winter weather which existed throughout the Northwest. In addition to the heavy snows, which caused congestion in transportation, the extremely low temperature of often ten degrees below zero made the handling of ore above ground extremely difficult."

Germany Produced Big Crops.

Although the financial situation in Germany is so stringent as to cause alarm as far away as this country, where it is believed to be of a nature which may bring on another panic, the situation in Europe, the crop situation in the Kaiser's realm is fine. The Berlin financial correspondent of the Hamburg newspapers says Germany's average production of wheat is thirty bushels an acre, against 12½ in the United States. America, he points out, does not use enough commercial fertilizers. Germany, however, needs laborers, and many foreigners are already working on farms that in case of a war "Germany's" cause would be left to rot in the fields."

To cultivate great estates, to be split into small farms, and to reclaim waste lands it is suggested that special inducements be offered German farmers to return from the United States and South America. The value of the wheat and rye crops and the production of live stock, together with milk, and butter and cheese, in 1912, was estimated at $2,774,000,000.

Financial News in Brief.

In the seven months ending with January the Reading company earned 12 per cent. on its common stock after allowing for dividends for a full year on first and second preferred stocks. Its surplus for that period available for dividends totalled $11,289,100, an increase of more than 100 per cent.

During February there were 1,454 commercial failures reported to R. G. Dun & Co., with an aggregate indebtedness of $28,141,258.

New Haven sold as low as 123 yesterday, the lowest in nearly forty years, but that sale was not reported on the ticker in New York because of the rule excluding sales of less than 100 shares from the tape. In 1899 the stock sold at 279. New Haven has maintained its present 8 per cent. dividend rate for eighteen years. Nine per cent. was paid in 1804 and 10 per cent. for several years previous to that.

One New York newspaper says in describing the Wall Street view of the new Cabinet: "There was a subdued air of rejoicing in financial circles, not only over the fact that Mr. Brandeis of Boston was not in the new Cabinet, but that Franklin Lane of California was in it, and will therefore be no longer connected with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Lane has always looked upon as one of the most anti-railroad men in the membership of the commission, or for that matter, in public life, and the reasonable presumption is that he will be succeeded on the commission by a man of broader views."

The New York sub-treasury gained $1,466,000 from banks yesterday and has gained $3,960,000 since Friday.

DR. DYER SAYS FINANCE BOARD INSULTED HIM

Dr. Franklin B. Dyer, superintendent of Boston's schools, said the Finance Commission is insulting in its questions on the expenditure of money, and he told the Public School Association so at its annual meeting. He said:

The Finance Commission has been asking me some very impudent and insulting questions. They've asked, "What do you do with the money?" Well, we told them we paid the teachers more nearly what they deserve—and if they look after the boys and girls that go to work. So the committee is going to ask the Legislature for more money that 12,000 children can be provided with part time education till they are at least sixteen.

HOWELL GIVEN CUP BY HIS ASSOCIATES

As a reminder of his forty years' continuous service with the Boston & Albany Railroad, and as a token of their affection and esteem, associates of James Howell in the traffic and freight claims departments have presented Mr. Howell with a solid sterling cup. The cup bears this inscription:

Presented to James Howell from his associates in the traffic and freight claim departments of the Boston & Albany Railroad, in March 1—1913.

He has lived for many years in Dorchester. He represented Ward 20 in the Legislature in 1900 and 1901.

RETAIL COAL MEN SAY NEW ENGLAND GETS "FAIR DEAL"

The Retail Coal Dealers' Association of New England, which is having its annual convention in Horticultural Hall, today holds its annual corporation meeting. Secretary Charles H. Haskell of Norwich, Ct., stated that the bulk of the work of the association in the past six months was in getting a large supply of coal for New England in the recent shortage.

The coal, he said, was placed where the greatest need existed. He declared members of the organization are now getting to a point where the consignees are beginning to get a fair share of consideration from the railroads.

$25,000 LOSS IN CENTRAL HOUSE FIRE, WOBURN

Fire, which at one time threatened the business centre of Woburn, early today destroyed the historic Central House on Main street, and an adjoining stable, causing a loss of about $25,000. A general alarm brought apparatus from Winchester and Stoneham.

The blaze started in a stable in the rear of the house, and worked into the second story of the hotel.

On the ground floor are three new stores, Gavin & Lydon, grocers; W. S. Lindsay, confectioner; and the Central Hardware Company, each of which suffered a loss of from $5,000 to $8,000. Thirty horses stabled at the rear of the hotel were rescued.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

A highly concentrated preparation of

Roots, Barks and Herbs

It contains not only Sarsaparilla, but also those great ALTERATIVES, Stillingia and Blue Flag; those great ANTI-BILIOUS and LIVER remedies, Mandrake and Dandelion; those great KIDNEY remedies, Uva Ursi, Juniper Berries and Pipsissewa; those great STOMACH TONICS, Gentian Root and Wild Cherry Bark; and other great curative agents harmoniously combined.

Prepared under its personal supervision of Mr. Hood,—assisted by a graduate of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, by the most modern pharmaceutical methods in one of the best equipped laboratories in the world. Hood's Sarsaparilla is in fact more medicinal, more effective, and much more economical than the common prescription of the physician. The familiar line, 100 DOSES ONE DOLLAR, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

FIVE HUNDRED AND TEN MILLIONS for the German Army This Year

A Gigantic Sum, That Would Build Two Panama Canals, TO BE SPENT IN ONE YEAR. But There ARE Redeeming Features.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal Examiner

When future ages study the history of these brutal times, and when they read that this year the German war budget, the amount to be spent preparing an army to murder men, amounts to more than half of one thousand millions, how they will smile at our calling ourselves "Civilized"!

This gigantic sum the German Emperor demands and will receive, because the Balkan troubles, the possibility of a fight between great nations to see which shall control the Dardanelles and the Eastern entrance to the Mediterranean give a pretext for demanding the greatest army and the greatest spending of money that any nation in the world has ever seen—in time of peace.

How horrible it is to think of this load put upon industry, upon agriculture, upon all the good and useful efforts of men and women!

Every German living is represented by the sum of $10 in that vast army budget of half a thousand millions for one year—AND ALL FOR MURDER. ALL MONEY SQUANDERED AND WASTED.

AND THE KEEPING UP OF THIS GREAT ARMY BY GERMANY COMPELS THE MAINTENANCE OF OTHER GREAT ARMIES BY OTHER NATIONS, and thus the inhabitants of all the countries of Europe are taxed and ground down by the curse of war and preparation for war.

This increase of nearly two hundred millions in Germany's regular war expense means that France will increase, Russia will increase, Italy, Austria and all the other countries that pretend to keep on a fighting basis will increase also.

And England, wondering what will happen if the big airships bring troops and dynamite from Germany to England, will also be frightened into increasing her army expenditures.

Fortunately there are one or two redeeming features in this frightful German program of extravagance and desolation.

In the first place, FOR A CHANGE, THE WHOLE LOAD IS NOT TO BE PUT ON THE BACKS OF THE PEASANTS AND POOR PEOPLE.

Hitherto the poorest classes have borne the cost of war.

They have gone into the army and done their five years' compulsory work—while the more prosperous, educated man, the so-called "Ein Jahriger," got off with one year.

And in the old system the poor men supplied the dead bodies that lined the battlefields—at least one hundred to one. After the flamboyant mention of one or two "heroic officers," there would also be a casual mention of so many "common soldiers" dead.

And in addition, the poor people have paid the greater part of the taxes.

There is one little change, however, in the last budget.

This terrific expense for war is declared A WAR MEASURE, and a special tax is to be laid upon big fortunes, in order that the rich men pay their share.

This is an excellent thing for a dozen reasons—and especially because THE RICH ACTUALLY DECIDE PEACE OR WAR, in our modern government, by money. And putting a heavy part of the tax on the rich man's pocket, will interest him in finding some method of maintaining the national equilibrium and settling who shall control the Dardanelles—without spending five hundred millions a year, keeping ready to fight.

If only the biggest men, beginning with the Kaiser, should be put in the front and be shot first of all in battle, and if every dollar that war costs could be taken from the pockets of the richest and intelligent citizens—we would soon have an end to war and some other scheme would be found.

Respectfully We Say That the Woman He LIKES Will Probably Have a Dull Time.

The young man whose letter appears below sends to the world, through us, a description of two women—one, the woman he likes, and one, the woman he doesn't like.

Here's his letter:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—There are two kinds of a woman—the woman that I like and the woman that I don't like. The woman that I don't like is the quick, snappy type. She knows everybody everywhere. Her goal, her ambition, is to force and seek attention. She's always in the limelight. She possesses an artificial tenderness and a selfish emotionalism. She saps the cream of love and then skips. Beware of her!

The woman that I like is the demure, quiet woman, the readable woman. She feels with you and for you, just like your mother. She stands by you through thick and thin. She sees no faults in you. She discovers the good and assists you in developing it. Fly to her! In the words of Nell Brinkley: "She wins man's love and keeps it—and the man she chooses is happy and seeks not to learn from any other page of womankind."

What's your opinion on this subject? Respectfully yours,

P. E.

It is fair to tell you that there are a million other kinds of women, about whom you know nothing.

There is the woman, for instance, who is not the flighty person you describe in the first place, and yet not by any means the kind of woman you describe as willing to devote her entire life to YOU, and to making you happy.

You ought to be able to realize that at least 99 per cent. of the women worth while in the world have something better to do than to interest themselves in you, or "assist you in developing the good in you."

There are many women, fortunately for the world, to whom "the good in you" is something quite unimportant.

If we had to be one of the two women whom you describe, we would rather be the first, THE ONE YOU DON'T LIKE.

She, at least, has a lively time and enjoys herself.

The woman that you do like, who is very numerous unfortunately, devoting herself to a man who amounts to little, treating seriously the very small ability of the foolish man that marries her, worrying over a husband not worth while, is a woman much to be pitied.

"What's the trouble there?"

"That's the annual banquet of the Cliffville Society. They've called on old Stonehatchet to speak, and he's got his notes all mixed up!"

Is It Clothes That Make the Man? Finding of Prehistoric Skull Novel Exemplification

Humanity Began on a Very Low Plane, but Possessed a Germ of Intelligence Sufficient to Rise Above Animal Contemporaries and Develop Into the Proud, Masterful Race of the Present Day.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"It is the clothes that make man."

This old adage receives a novel exemplification in connection with recent discoveries concerning the men of prehistoric times. That it has been the absence of the CLOTHING OF FLESH which has rendered the remains of early man puzzling and unconvincing to all except anatomical experts is strikingly proved by a picture, in HEARST'S MAGAZINE for March, in which the remarkable human skull found in an ancient gravel pit in Sussex, England, is shown with the flesh and hair skilfully restored.

In looking at the picture one feels that, at last, he sees man as he was hundreds of thousands of years ago. Nature preserved the bones, science puts on the missing flesh, and, lo! one of our common ancestors starts out of the gloom of the ages and stands before us.

It is no fanciful picture as you can see at once by comparing the outline of the skull placed beside it with the face into which it is transformed the moment the eyes are replaced in their sockets.

Addition of Flesh Transformed Skull Into Human Countenance

Also the lips hung upon the jaws, the cheeks stretched over the facial bones, and the eyebrows and hair put into their proper positions.

Instantaneously a human being is before your eyes. And this human being, who was a "Pleistocene" man, living when mastodons, prehistoric elephants and hippopotamuses dwelt in the British Isles, bears a startling resemblance to the members of some of the savage tribes of today! The eyes of the learned savant notes the differences, but the ordinary observer sees only the wonderful likeness. For him the unclothed skull means little; but dressed with the habiliments of life it becomes a man.

Look at that low, retreating forehead; that projecting brow; that insignificant nose; those sunken eyes; that immense, outthrust muzzle, with the thick, swollen lips, that weak, pointless chin, and then grasp the unmistakable human aspect of the face as a whole. There is no denying that prehistoric man's right to a place on the human ladder. He had his foot on the bottom rung, but behind his brutal countenance was the germ of an intelligence which was to grow and brighten until his descendants became the proud, masterful, world-subduing Britons of the present day. He had within him something that all his animal contemporaries lacked—the power of rising in the scale of being! The pre-historic elephants and the mastadons ran their course and perished with the changing ages; he alone had the inherent capacity to adjust himself to the shifting moods of the world about him, and to find something to his advantage at every turn of the wheel.

This Prehistoric Sussex Man Possesses Peculiar Interest

This ancient Sussex man possesses a peculiar interest because he alone, among all the pre-historic representatives of our species that have yet been discovered, appears to have given birth to a race of man which has continued, for vast eons, to inhabit the same place on the earth. Anatomists find in his skull a strange resemblance, not withstanding the lowness of his type, to the characteristic features of the skulls of men now living in the county of Sussex!

The enormous antiquity of man on this planet becomes every year more evident. But none of the discoverics that have been made carry us back to the very beginning. Not many years ago it was thought that the long-sought "missing link," connecting man with his ape ancestors, had been discovered in Java. But that conclusion has not resisted criticism. The true "ape-man," if he ever existed, is still buried from sight. Even the pre-historic man of Java had a skull superior to any ape's; he was already a man, potentially, and there must have been humbler types preceding him, and some time, it is possible, they may be discovered.

Man's Gradual Evolution Ridiculed Within Our Memory

It is well within the memory of man yet living that the theory of the immense antiquity of man, and of his gradual evolution was treated with contempt and abuse, so that some investigators hardly dared to say all that they believed. That, however, is past now. No person competent to form an opinion any longer doubts that humanity began on a low plane. To believe otherwise would challenge our faith in the ability of man to become something far higher and better than he is today.

Dorothy Dix's Article —ON— Success in Life—No Magic Formula, Only Hard Work the Answer —Careers of World's Noted Persons Demonstrate.

By DOROTHY DIX

A WEALTHY young girl committed suicide the other day because, she said, Miss Garden had promised to make a great opera singer of her, and had failed to do so.

Miss Garden denied ever having heard of the young woman, and to have made any such impossible bargain with her. She is a practical woman, and she knows that no human being can make another a great singer. Nature has to lay the foundations for that job, and the individual must work out with toil and sweat the balance of the contract.

That's the way Miss Garden herself became a prima donna, and it's the way that everybody else who succeeds turns the trick. The road to achievement is a hard and stony one, along which we must travel on our own feet. We may not reach the goal luxuriously transported thither in somebody else's automobile.

The reason why there are so many failures in the world is because the great majority of people sit around, helplessly waiting for somebody else to come along and make them, instead of rolling up their sleeves and getting busy themselves. They pine for laurel wreaths, but they are not willing to scratch their own fingers gathering the material out of which to make them. They expect some kind friend to walk up and bestow upon them a custom-made crown of glory.

Poor Think Rockefeller and Morgan Have Magic Wealth Formula

Every poor man believes that Mr. Morgan and Mr. Rockefeller know some magic formula for making money that they could divulge if they would, that would enable the laziest village loafer to acquire riches without effort.

Every scribbler is firmly convinced that every successful writer could get him a position as the editor-in-chief of a paper, or set publishers running after his verses or stories, if only the authors who have arrived were not so jealous they are trying to keep everybody else down.

Every choir singer is confident that Caruso and Farrar could get him or her a $40,000-a-year contract with the Metropolitan Opera, if only famous singers weren't so afraid of rivals they tried to shut real talent out.

Every stage-struck boy or girl believes that John Drew or Maude Adams has only to say a word to make him or her a Frohman star.

Yet, if Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Morgan were to divulge the whole secret of money-making to any youth anxious to become rich, all that they could tell him would be that he must work, work, work, and watch his opportunity, and that the one sure way to rise in a business office is to make yourself so invaluable that your employers can't do without you.

The only way that any successful writer can help the young man and woman eager to break into print is to tell them to write so well and entertainingly that the public will want to read their stories and verses. Then publishers will fight with each other over their productions.

All that the prima donna or the star can tell the youthful aspirants for operatic or dramatic honors is that they must have talent to begin with, and polish and perfect this by years of study and thought and ceaseless endeavor, until their art shines like a jewel, so that audiences will be willing to pay out good money to gloat over it.

None of these people who have succeeded knew any dark magic to conjure with. None of them had any great patron who pushed them into success. None of them was a clinging vine that hung on anybody else.

Saw What They Wanted and Went Out and Secured It

They saw what they wanted, and they went out and got it. And that's what everybody has to do who succeeds.

As a matter of fact, there's very little that any of us, even with the best intentions, can do toward helping any other person to achieve things. Mr. Morgan could lend a man enough money to start in business, but he couldn't give him the financial sagacity to make a success of that business. Unless the man had that himself, in the end he would fail. Mr. Carnegie didn't make his Schwabs and Coreys. They made themselves.

Miss Garden couldn't have made the poor rich girl without a voice a singer that an audience would have applauded. Nor did any wealthy and powerful individual make the Tetrazzinis and Farrars. They made themselves.

Mr. Kipling himself couldn't get the pointless, stupid, badly expressed story of his dearest friend into a first-class magazine, but when he was a poor, obscure boy, writing stories for a newspaper in a far-away Indian city, the whole world sat up and took notice. He didn't call in Conan Doyle or the Viceroy of India to get his work accepted.

There are no people so mistaken as those who believe in pull, instead of putting their faith in push. They waste their time while they try to get other people to help them instead of helping themselves.

The truth is that no one can help us. We must help ourselves.

We Must Help Ourselves if We Would Succeed in Life

The man who climbs to the top of the ladder by his own strength and agility and energy stays there. The one who is boosted up a few rounds by others falls to the bottom when the supporting shoulders are withdrawn.

If I could give one piece of advice to any ambitious young girl or boy, it would be this: Don't waste any time or energy trying to get influence or recommendation or backing of some distinguished person. Just play the game of life off your own bat. Fit yourself for whatever you want to do so that you can deliver the goods. That's all that the world wants, and that's all that's necessary to attain success. And it's the only way to attain success.

Nobody else can make you great. It's God and yourself for that job.

THE OTHER LOVE

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

The love you had for her, my boy,
Before your hopes were blasted,
Was blissful, blended fire and joy,
And wondrous while it lasted.
One love remains for you, my boy,
Fixed as the mountain ranges;
The other love, the mother love,
The love that never changes.

And so when things have gone amiss
And Memory swings her lashes,
Reminding you of some mad bliss
That turned to Dead Sea ashes,
Like some small boy you creep back home
To find, while grief assails you,
The other love the mother love,
The love that never fails you.
